

REPORT ON DYNAMITE CASES

MAN WAS HELD FOR POLYGAMY WILL BE MADE BY SUFFOLK COUNTY MASTERS OF GRAMMAR SCHOOLS

It is Alleged That He Has Three Wives—Man Sentenced for Assault Enters an Appeal

Peter Papadopoulos was arraigned before Judge Bright in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with polygamy. He entered a plea of not guilty, but was not defended by counsel. At the conclusion of the hearing probable cause was found and he was held under $500 for his appearance before the superior court.

It is alleged that he was married the first time in Greece and about July, 1910, was married to Vasilis Sophianopoulos in Portland, Me., and married to Athena Filipopoulos in this city in May of this year.

The complainant, Athena Filipopoulos, testified that she was married to the defendant by Rev. Constant H. Demetri, pastor of the Holy Trinity Greek church in Jefferson street, several months ago. She said that time believed that the man to whom she was married was a single man.

Rev. Fr. Demetri testified to having married the couple in May and subsequently received a copy of a certificate of marriage showing that the defendant had been previously married.

Vasilis Sophianopoulos, who it is alleged was the defendant's second wife, said that she was married to the defendant in Portland, Me., but only lived with him a short time.

The defendant when placed on the stand admitted that he had been married in Greece and also that he had married the two young women who had previously testified against him.

The court after considering the evidence in the case found probable cause and held the defendant under $500 for his appearance before the superior court.

Sentenced to Jail
Patrick Bourke pleaded not guilty to a complaint charging him with assault and battery on Mary Pierce, an aged woman. After a long drawn out trial the defendant was found guilty and sentenced to four months in jail, from which sentence he appealed. Daniel J. Donahue appeared for the defendant and the government's case was conducted by William A. Hoxan.

The alleged assault took place on June 15 and Mrs. Pierce has been in a hospital suffering from a broken leg for seven weeks.

The first witness called was Mrs. Mary Pierce, the complainant, who stated that she resided at 337 Lawrence street. She said she occupied an upstairs tenement in the building while the defendant and his family lived in a downstairs tenement on the other side of the house. On the morning in question she said she was standing on the piazza when Bourke called her a vile name and pushed her down the steps with the result that her leg was broken and she was taken to a hospital.

Patrolman John A. Conway testified that he was called to the woman's house in Lawrence street and subsequently found Bourke in a drunken condition and placed him under arrest. Witness said that the defendant admitted he had been drinking, but said that the woman had struck him twice in the face and in self-defense he pushed her.

Lieut. Martin Connors who was present on the day of the alleged assault, testified that Bourke was drunk when placed under arrest.

The first witness for the defense was a little girl, Gertrude Shore, who said she resided at 312 Lawrence street. She said she saw Mrs. Pierce raise her hands and then strike Mr. Bourke and that the latter in defending himself, pushed the woman, and she fell down the steps.

John Higgins, who was passing through the street about the time the assault took place said he saw the woman strike the defendant twice.

Lengthy arguments were made by counsel in the case but at the conclusion of the arguments Judge Bright found the defendant guilty and sentenced him to four months in jail. An appeal was made, Bourke being held under $500 bonds for appearance before the superior court.

Held For Superior Court
Dominick Trainor, who was arrested on a paternity warrant, was in court this morning and after being given a hearing was held under $500 bonds for the superior court.

Case Continued
The case of James Carville, who recently appeared before the court on a complaint charging him with breaking and entering and larceny, was continued until Sept. 21.

Alleged Thief
Hiko Giragastian was placed under arrest by Major E. J. Noves this morning on a warrant charging the man with having stolen 12 sacks of cloth, each of the value of six cents, the property of the Lowell Bleachery.

When arraigned in court the defendant testified that he had stolen one yard of cloth. Owing to the absence of witnesses the case was continued until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock.

Charged With Larceny
Peter Moran entered a plea of not guilty to a complaint charging him with the larceny of a watch, chain and razor, valued at $22.50, the property of James Pelland. The case was continued for hearing until tomorrow morning.

Neglected His Wife
John B. Frechette pleaded guilty to failing to provide for the support of his two minor children, Mrs. Frechette testified that her husband worked every day, but that he spent the most of his money for intoxicating liquors and neglected her. She said that she had to work every day and with the assistance of her mother was able to provide for the children. The court found the defendant guilty and ordered him to pay $5 a week to his wife.

Drunken Offenders
James J. McEvoy charged with being drunk was ordered to pay a fine of $3 and Timothy Shea was also fined $3. There were two first offenders who were fined $2 each and five simple drunks were released.

Walter W. Fowler was fined $5, but was given one month in which to pay the fine.

GRAND JURY NEXT SATURDAY MORNING

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—District Attorney Pelletier had practically completed his grand jury investigation of the Lawrence dynamite cases today, and a report may be had by Saturday, he said. Only a few witnesses were heard today. In the course of the investigation, which has to do with the alleged illegal distribution of dynamite in the homes of Lawrence mill strikers during the textile disturbance last winter, people of nearly all walks of life have been before the grand jury. Men identified with the mills as employes before and during the strike, men in charge of the mills, a judge of the police court of Lawrence, prominent business men and politicians of that city and militiamen on duty during the strike have been called upon to testify.

The Lowell High School Football Squad Now Numbers About Fifty Candidates

CANDIDATES FOR THE LOWELL HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL TEAM

If the size of the squad counts for anything, the enthusiasm in football circles at the Lowell high school is greater than ever and if conditions continue in their present favorable aspect Coach Mahoney should have a team far above the ordinary. At the annual practice which was called for Monday afternoon about 20 candidates reported at Washington park, among them a large number who remain from last year's eleven. Among the new men there is much promising material, although several of the players on last year's aggregation will be greatly missed and especially will the loss be felt in the backfield, where a vacancy is left by the absence of H. R. Legault, for two years captain of the team.

The squad increased yesterday and today until this afternoon the candidates numbered between 40 and 50. As usual Captain Ed Cawley is the most prominent figure in the back line with Carter, Train, Cahill and Bailey as speedy ends, the latter also being veteran players. In the front line, Cawley is bound to shine and the two Donahues, who had some experience last season, should be valuable men this year. Standing out most prominently among the new men is Stadel, who is trying out for the back field.

Coach Mahoney has gained considerable fame in Lowell as a competent handler of football teams and has met with great success in his efforts in the interest of the 32nd school eleven in past years. Thus far he has put the men through the usual opening routine such as running, kicking, etc., and as yet they have had no opportunity of being up in a practice game. This important feature of the training will, however, be introduced at the beginning of next week when lively scrimmages will be seen between the different picked eleven.

The schedule prepared by Manager O'Donnell is without a doubt, the best for years for relations are resumed between Lowell and Lawrence, and the latter will come to this city to clash with the locals. This should prove to be one of the best games on the list as the rivalry between the two schools is even greater than ever. The game will be played on Columbus day, Oct. 12.

DOWS, THE DRUGGIST

To Discuss School Matters Friday Afternoon—Dates for State Registration Announced

There will be a meeting of the grammar masters at the school committee room on Friday afternoon, Sept. 20, at 4:15 o'clock. Notice of the meeting has been sent the grammar masters by the superintendent of schools, Hugh J. Molloy. "The meeting is called," said Mr. Molloy, "for the purpose of discussing school details and administration incidental to the opening of a new year and to receive suggestions from the principals concerning matters for which the superintendent must propose plans in the near future."

Supt. Molloy has requested the grammar masters that if they have any pupils enrolled in their schools in grammar grades who reside outside their school districts to send their names and addresses to his office. The notice reads as follows:

To Grammar School Masters:

If you have any pupils enrolled in your schools in grammar grades who reside outside your school district, please send their names and addresses to this office at your earliest convenience. If you have any written or printed material relating to these pupils, and concerning their attendance at a school outside the district in which they reside, please send it when you send the names."

State Election Registration

The dates for state election registration were given out at the office of the board of registrars of voters this forenoon and are as follows: Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Oct. 1, 2, 3 and 4; Sunday, Oct. 7, Thursday and Friday, Oct. 10 and 11, and Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 14, 15 and 16. The hours for registration will be from 10:30 a. m. to 8 p. m. The registration for the primaries on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week, added 317 new names to the list. The greatest number of names in any one ward came from ward two, 160 names being added from that ward. The primaries will be held next Tuesday.

John King's Reckoning

John King is quite a hand at figures and is connected, at times, with the office of the board of registrars. John can carry on through a long vista of years when it comes to doing out figures having to do with politics. John went to his figures this morning because he had heard that the towns were getting in line to stand "pat" for Grimes for congress and he allows that if the towns stand by the man from Reading and he gets 500 votes in Lowell, John Jacob Rogers will have a fight on his hands. Mr. King says that the 30 towns in the district have about as many votes as the two cities, Lowell and Woburn.

Scarlet Fever Cases

Fifty cases of scarlet fever have been reported at the office of the board of health since August 1, and a majority of the 50 cases have been reported since the first of the present month. Several of the cases have developed on the route of one particular milk dealer and the board has been trying to trace the trouble to his dairies but hasn't been able to do so yet. The number of contagious diseases always shows a big increase at the "coming home time" of summer vacationists and the opening of the schools and the board of health has notified the superintendent of schools and the school physicians to exercise extra precaution at this time. No deaths from scarlet fever have been reported.

Hawkers and Peddlers

Commissioner Cummings says that if hawkers and peddlers want to continue in business in Lowell they had better carry their licenses with them instead of leaving them at home. Mr. Cummings received a peddler yesterday who was slyly his license. He didn't say it was in the pantry, the ice chest or the wood shed and Mr. Cummings didn't care. He told him that if he ever caught him again without his license he would recommend to the license commissioners that his license be revoked.

The Comfort Station

When the proposition to locate the public comfort station in Paige street was first mentioned it was stated that in all probability considerable ledge would be encountered because it was known, by the street department and others, to exist there. It was not thought, however, that ledge would be encountered right off the bat but such has been the case and the contractor's sole consolation is contained in the fact that his contract allows him $3 extra per cubic yard for ledge work. It was figured that the station could be built for $1950 but the city engineer allows that with the extra money for ledge the whole of the appropriation, $2200, will be eaten up. The cost of repaving the street is not included in the appropriation and it, too, will be extra. The work of repaving the street will be done by the street department.

The Smoke Inspector

Once more the hard-working smoke inspector is on the job. Just before Mayor O'Donnell left city hall, Monday, preparatory to going to Buffalo, to attend the annual convention of the League of American Municipalities, the smoke inspector presented him a formidable typewritten list of questions relative to "smoke," with the request that he present the queries to the smoke inspector of Buffalo.

From Office to Office

It's an ill-wind that blows nobody good. The temporary clerks who have been working in the assessor's office under the civil service law have finished their assessorial duties and are now assistants to the city treasurer in making out tax bills. Up to this year the city treasurer could employ whomever he saw fit for the tax-bill job but as his department is now under civil service rules he was required to employ only civil service clerks. As the clerks in the assessors' office finished their work just as the extra work in the treasurer's office was about to begin, Treasurer Stiles had them transferred to his department.

Golf Tournament

MANCHESTER, Vt., Sept. 18.—Sixty-six golfers started today in the thirteenth annual tournament of the Equinox club and other prizes, at the Equinox Country club. Fred Herreshoff, Westbrook, and Norman Hunter of Idubridge, Scotland, shared a large gallery but neither was in best form.

The best scores among the cards turned in at noon included: F. P. Clark, Equinox 30; Holden Wilson, Cincinnati, 31; P. S. Douglas-Nassau, 32; C. S. Clark, Equinox 33; M. R. Marston, Cranford, 36.

Occurred in Highlands This Morning

There was considerable excitement in the Highlands this morning, when a runaway horse crashed into another wagon at the corner of Westford and Stevens streets. Fortunately there was no damage outside of a few scratches suffered by one of the horses. People coming down Stevens street in the direction of Middlesex street at 5.30 o'clock this morning were suddenly seized with terror when they saw a horse hitched to one of Scripture's laundry wagons going up the hill at a very fast clip. There was no driver in the wagon and the horse came from Middlesex street. When the frightened animal reached Westford street, the wagon collided with a wagon owned by the Lowell Gas Light Co. The maddened horse, however, was brought to a stop before any damage was done. It was said that the horse hitched to Scripture's laundry wagon was slightly injured about the legs.

Permanent Receivers

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 18.—Permanent receivers for the Providence engineering works were appointed today without bonds by presiding Justice Tanner of the supreme court upon the petition of the Industrial Trust Co. of this city. The bank is one of several banking institutions including the Worcester Trust Co. of Worcester, which has claims against the company amounting to the aggregate of $150,000. The receivership came as the result of the suit against the United States Motors Co., which owns the engineering works about $152,000.

Chas. E. Anderson at the Moulders' Convention

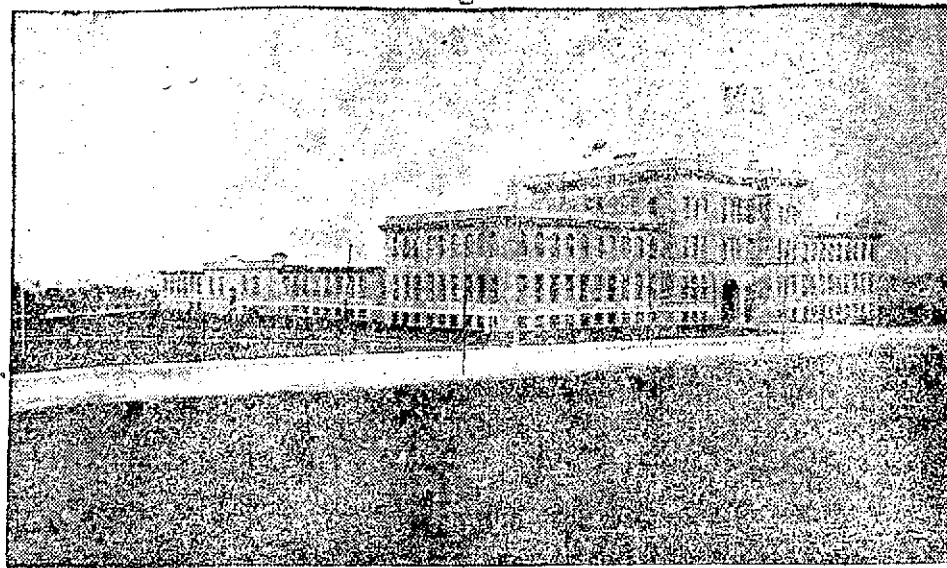

Charles E. Anderson, secretary of the local Moulders' union and a well known labor man, left this city today for Milwaukee, where he will attend the annual international convention of the Iron Workers. Mr. Anderson was elected a delegate by the local union, and he expects to take an active part in the proceedings. Mr. Anderson left on the 11.59 train and was accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Oscar Peterson, of Minneapolis, who has been visiting here during the summer months. Mrs. Peterson is a former Lowell woman and she greatly enjoyed her vacation here. Mr. Anderson plans to remain in the middle west a few days after the convention, and will visit all the interesting points in that section before his return to Lowell.

Principal Ames of the Textile School Is Pleased With the Bright Prospects of Success

LOWELL TEXTILE SCHOOL

The Lowell Textile school day sessions will begin on Tuesday, September 24, and the night school of the institution will open for the fall term on the evening of Monday, October 14, the latter retaining the usual hours, namely from 7 to 9 o'clock on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays.

There have been several changes in the faculty of the school this year, particularly in the departments of chemistry and dyeing. Benjamin S. Bolander, M. S., formerly instructor in chemistry, has resigned his position at the Textile school and has accepted a professorship in Syracuse university in New York state. A graduate of Clark university, class of 1912, John C. Standish, I. T. S., '11, has resigned his position as instructor of dyeing to enter the employ of a New York firm as chemist and dyer, and Warren H. Whitehill, a graduate of the Textile school class of 1912, will take the place of Mr. Standish. Walter L. Hunter, I. T. S., '08, who has been instructor of chemistry at the school, will not return there this year, having accepted a position as assistant chemist in a dye manufacturing concern in New Jersey. In the dyeing department, Edward J. Barry, S. B., who was an assistant instructor of mechanical drawing, has gone to Connecticut to take up the work of assistant master mechanic and will be replaced by David M. Hunting, I. T. S., '12.

Mr. Charles H. Barnes, B. S., who for the past seven years held the office of principal of the Textile school, will continue his duties in that capacity and under his guidance, the institution is making rapid progress in its curriculum as well as its enrollment. The other officers are: Walter L. Hunter, Secretary; Cecilia A. Smith, secretary; Grace Pearson, registrar; and Florence M. Lacey, librarian.

Mr. Barnes said this morning that orders have been placed for a modern equipment of cotton finishing machinery and this is expected to arrive in a few weeks. There have been many other improvements about the buildings during the summer months. The power house is now nearing completion and will be in commission shortly after the opening of the school for the fall session. Commencing this year, two new features will be included in the curriculum in the form of four year courses in the departments of chemistry and engineering, and students satisfactorily completing these will receive the degree of Bachelor of textile engineering or of textile dyeing, according to the nature of their choice. The right to confer these degrees was granted in an act passed at the last session of the legislature after it had been approved by the state board of education. In an interview today, Mr. Barnes outlined the work of the Lowell Textile school and explained the reason for its constant branching out and widening of its courses. The field of activity which is open to graduates of a textile school is becoming broader each year, and many industries outside of the manufacture of fabrics are creating a demand for young men with a training in this kind. For example, many which are engaged in the manufacture of automobile tires find place for textile graduates since the tires are partly constructed of a fine cotton fibre and a man who understands that is more easy to examine and inspect it as it comes in. Again, the government employs a number of young men with a textile school training and these are well paid. Thus it is that the local institution is widening its resources. Of course, the engineering and chemical departments relate simply and solely to the manufacture of cloth; graduates of these are textile chemists or textile engineers. But the relations of mechanics and chemistry and engineering to this industry are very evident and the fact that the student has an opportunity of learning these branches affords him a better and wider field for his work.

Present indications point to an enrollment which promises to be even larger than it has been in the past. In previous years the students at the school have numbered between 150 and 175 in the day sessions. The night sessions have attracted many more than this and the attendance at these is usually over 400. The young men who are employed in the mills here and the surrounding cities are aware of the fact that by learning the details of the business they have a chance to greatly better themselves and in the textile school they find an excellent opportunity of obtaining this valuable knowledge which is so necessary to their advancement.

Evening Classes

Registration for the evening classes will be held every evening till the opening, beginning Sept. 26.

Athletics

Athletics at the institution have been in no way neglected and football will absorb all interest as soon as the fall term begins. Frank A. Brady, who for the past several years has been coach of the team, will resume his duties in that capacity again this season. Mr. Brady is a well known athlete himself and his efforts in behalf of the success of the textile school eleven have been greatly appreciated in the past seasons. He is a graduate of Dartmouth college and assisted in the coaching there. Manager Ryder has prepared an excellent schedule which will be ready for publication soon. Games will be played with New Hampshire state, Cushing academy, Lawrence academy, Gorton preparatory school, St. John's academy at Danvers and Exeter, A. Thompson, who was captain of the team last season, has been elected to lead the team again this year.

AGED STREET SWEEPER IS ILL

Frederick Bussiere is Missed From His Regular "Beat"

The many friends of Mr. Frederick Bussiere of 477 1/2 Moody street, will be pained to learn that he is confined to his home with a severe illness. Mr. Bussiere, who was 72 years of age last June, is about the oldest man in the employ of the city, his present occupation being street sweeper. His "beat" is Decatur to Merrimack and Allen to Ford, and a scrupulously well kept beat this was until the time of his illness last Friday.

Mr. Bussiere has been in the employ of the city for the past 19 years, his first work having been in the sewer department, where for three years he was kept busy at the drill. Later he was shifted to the street department, resuming such duties, which work he accomplished in a capable manner for 16 years. From there he went to work on the ledge in Brown street and later returned to the sewer department until two years ago when he was assigned to his present job. Despite his age Mr. Bussiere is still alert and very active at work and the past few days have been a torture to him, for his place, says, is at work.

Mr. Bussiere was born at St. Louis, Mo., 72 years ago, and has been in Lowell 23 years, having been naturalized shortly after his arrival. He is the father of 12 children, nine of whom are living, seven being married. He has seen three generations of his children and it is with pride he says he is the grandfather of 61 grand-children, they being divided as follows: Mrs. Pierre Dubreuil, Pelham, 16; Mrs. George Gendron, 13; Mrs. Pierre Fournier, 12; Mrs. Joseph Dubreuil, 11; Joseph Bussiere, 6; and Stanley Bussiere, 6. He also counts 12 great-grandchildren.

There was only one man doing street work who is older than Mr. Bussiere, he being Mr. Henri Aulda, aged 75 years, who retired last year. Mr. Bussiere is straight and spare, clean shaven, and with few gray hairs in his head, and is to be hardly noticeable. He expects

LOCAL 1610

Of Carpenters' Union to Meet Tonight and Hear Report of Sunday's Outing

Local 1610 of the Carpenters' union will hold a meeting in Carpenters hall this evening and a report of the outing held by the members at their camp at Willow Dale Sunday will be heard.

During the summer months several members of the union erected a camp at Willow Dale, at the corner of 192 Indian and County roads, and the work was done on spare time. It was delayed considerably. It was finished last week and formally opened Sunday. About 125 members and friends assembled there during the day and all had a most enjoyable time. The feature of the day was the dinner provided, the latter being given under the direction of Alfred A. Lee, business agent of the Carpenters in Lowell. The latter is quite a cook and the report that he served was greatly enjoyed by all.

ED. J. SHANAHAN'S WILL A COMPLAINT IS FILED

Being Contested by His Sister of This City

Against the Boston & Maine Road

The will of Edwin J. Shanahan, formerly a druggist in this city, who died in Taunton on the 27th of June last, is being contested by a sister, Mrs. Kate Curtin of Agawam street, Lowell. The property left by Mr. Shanahan amounted to about $10,000 realty and $5000 personal, and the will was drawn up by himself a year and one-half ago previous to his death, but not formally executed until a week prior to his death.

Since leaving Lowell 15 years ago, Mr. Shanahan had been practicing medicine in Taunton and owned considerable property. He married about three years prior to his death and by the terms of his will divided his property between his wife, Mrs. Florence Shanahan, and a sister and brother living in Ireland, except for a bequest of $100, which he left to his sister, Mrs. Curtin.

Through her attorney, John W. McEvoy, Esq., Mrs. Curtin states that it is alleged that the executor with which Mr. Shanahan was suffering rendered him mentally embarrassed and that such was his condition when the will was executed. At the preliminary hearing which was held in Taunton on last Monday, the contestant put in no evidence. After the will was formally allowed an appeal was taken and the case will come up in Taunton in November, ex-Mayor William S. Woods of the latter city appeared in defense of the will.

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—Alleging that the Boston & Maine Railroad Company gives H. Harris & Co. the privilege of selling its fruit first at the auction room at Warren Bridge, the firm of Seagony, Lyons & Co. yesterday filed a complaint with the interstate commerce commission at Washington.

They want the commission to direct that they be permitted to sell first on alternate days and to be permitted to nominate their own auctioneer. Under B. Dwyer, junior partner of the firm of H. Harris & Co., held that there were two auction rooms side by side given by the railroad men for the use of shippers. "We sell in one auction room," he said, "and any other company has an equal privilege to sell in the other when that one is engaged. He maintained that there was no discrimination."

Manager Dooin of the Phillies

Has Grand Lot of Hitters

CHARLEY DOOIN

"Did you ever stop to consider what a pitcher is up against when he faces the Phillies?" queried a prominent National League pitcher the other day. "Look them over. First up is Paskert, a 300 hitter; next comes Lobert, another 300 hitter. Both are fast on the bases, good waiters, and the hit and run is made for them. Then comes Magee, another 300 hitter and a man who is dangerous on the paths unless you keep him chained to a base."

"It's mighty hard to keep one of those three men from getting on, and when one gets on he's likely to get around. And look who's coming up fourth. Cravath, another 300 batsman, who is likely to slam the ball so far out that no fielder can get it. However, if 'Grabby' fails to connect Luderus may get a chance. He was not batting in the spring, but he is fast getting his eye on the ball, and when he hits one mammoth 'good night' and throw your glove away."

"After Luderus you get another man who is batting 300 this season, Otto Kumbie. Dooin is not a wonder with the bat, but he hits occasionally in a rally. Dooin and Killifer, the catchers, are both dangerous men. But eliminate all the others and just consider the first four players—Paskert, Lobert, Magee and Cravath—all batting over 300. Add Luderus, a home run hitter. What team has so formidable a batting order?"

HIS THREE WIVES TESTIFIED

They Tell of Their Lives With Dr. Stone Who Was Murdered at Harvard

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Sept. 18.—All three wives of Dr. Henry M. Stone of Newburyport, who was murdered at Harvard three years ago, testified in the superior court here yesterday in a case brought by Eugene W. Stone, administrator of his father's estate, against Ella F. Stone, the third wife, to recover $2296, which, the plaintiff claims belonged to the estate. The case took all day and was unfinished at adjournment.

Dr. Stone's first wife, who also bears the name of Ella F. Stone, is a gray-haired, fine-looking elderly woman who testified that she was married to Dr. H. F. Stone on Aug. 15, 1878, at Henniker, N. H., and went to live with Dr. Stone, then a dentist, at Ayer.

She said that Dr. Stone left her with two young children, Arthur H. Stone and Eugene W. Stone. Mrs. Stone said she brought the children up the best she could by washing, until the oldest was about 12 years old, when they went to live with their grandparents.

When asked by her attorney about the divorce which it is claimed that Dr. Stone secured from her in New Jersey, she said that she never was served with a notice that he was seeking one, and after a while she heard rumor that he had secured one. She did not know the second wife but after a while heard that he was married to Ella F. Stone. When questioned about seeing Dr. Stone after he left her she said that he came to see her once in a while at Ayer.

"On one of those visits he said 'he would provide for me,' the witness claimed, 'if I outlived him, and that I should have one-half of the estate; that he did not have an honorable separation from me, but that he got it through forgery and perjury. I claim to be his lawful wife.'"

At this point the divorce papers were produced, and the record of the alleged divorce was Dec. 24, 1886, in Newark, N. J., and the records show that at that time Dr. Stone claimed that he was a resident of New Jersey and that his wife was at Philadelphia, and that he had served her with a notice. She said that she was never in that city except with her husband on her wedding journey in 1878.

On cross-examination she said that her maiden name was Ella F. Whitcomb and that after she married Dr. Stone she knew a Mr. Smith, whom her husband brought to the house in 1884, also other men who her husband had there. "When my last child was born Dr. Stone did refuse to recognize it as his child," she said, "but it was I never had any notice whatever of the divorce proceeding."

Witness said that she acted under advice of counsel regarding complaining to the authorities about Dr. Stone living with another woman whom he claimed as his wife.

The second wife, who is now Flora Temple Bowler of Worcester, testified that she married Dr. Stone in 1887 and that she divorced him in 1892.

The third wife, who is the defendant, is an attractive woman about 60 years old. She said that she has been a dentist for 11 years, that she married Dr. Henry M. Stone in Newburyport, June 15, 1895, and had lived with him until he died.

She said she first met Dr. Stone through a matrimonial "ad" in a newspaper and that she went to Newburyport to see him. They met at the station. She went there with the local of matrimony, if both were agreeable. They both were agreeable, she said, and suited with each other. She admitted that it was a rather risky way of getting a husband, but thought it would be fun and she believed in divorce. She thought if they did not get along well together they would get a divorce.

The money she has, which is in litigation, she claims was given to her by Dr. Stone, and she also said that she had a considerable amount of property in her name. She held some property subject to his control which was to be hers when he died. She said that her husband always had a string on the property that was in her name. At one time, the witness stated, she wanted money and threatened to leave the doctor if she did not get it, and he gave her some shares in the Chelsea Co-operative bank. She denied emphatically that she knew she was not legally married to Dr. Stone.

THE UNITED STATES NOTE

Not Too Strong the Diplomats Say

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Central American diplomats expressed the general opinion today that the United States in its note on the Nicaraguan situation and the Central American danger from the revolution had not been any too strong in its demands that peace be restored and Zelayaism be prevented from returning.

As applied to the other countries of Central America each minister was of the opinion that intervention by the United States to restore order was desirable but as to his own country no such intervention would be necessary.

There was no difference among the diplomats as to the general desire among the governments of Central America to keep anything like Zelayaism from gaining power.

GOVERNOR WILSON

Will Have a Busy Time in the Twin Cities—He Will Make Several Addresses.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 18.—A busy day in the twin cities was the outlook for Gov. Woodrow Wilson, democratic presidential candidate, when he arrived in Minneapolis today from Sioux City, Ia., and Sioux Falls, S. D. At 10.30 a. m. he is scheduled to make an address at the University of Minnesota armory and at 12.30 o'clock to speak at an open air meeting on the parade ground or in the first regiment armory if the weather is inclement.

After the address he will attend a private luncheon and consult with Minnesota party leaders and then will go to St. Paul, where he makes the principal address in the twin cities in the St. Paul auditorium tonight.

CHANGES

In Routes of Several Street Car Lines

Several changes in the routes of the car lines in this city went into effect in this city today, owing to repairs being made on lines of the local system. As the Fordway bridge at Billerica was closed today, cars are held on both sides and travelers are obliged to walk over a foot bridge.

This consumes considerable time, and owing to the fact that all the Gosham street cars upon reaching Merrimack square, went to Dracut centre, the officials of the road decided to have setbacks in the square to run over Bridge street, and just run the Gosham street conveyances to the square and return out to the bridge.

The time owing to the wait at the bridge, will be about ten minutes later than formerly, but those running out Bridge street will travel on the same schedule as has always been in effect there.

As new tracks are to be laid in sections of the Lakeview car line this week, a change will also be in effect there. The section to be repaired is that between Parker avenue and what is known as the granite pit. The rails there are in very poor condition, and owing to the heavy travel over the line during the summer months the work of laying the new rails was held up. During the repairs one will be used, but as setbacks will be presented into service, the company is confident that the travelling will not be interfered with.

On East Merrimack street, too, the tracks are to be repaired, and as smooth paving will be laid on a part of the street there, the railway company will be obliged to run short cars over that line.

Latest music, Fri. eve., Billerica.

ANNOUNCED THE U.S. BUNTING CLUB THE RECRUITING STATION

Planning Great Improvements at Grounds Reports a Large Business in September

A special meeting of the United States Bunting club is scheduled to take place at the club house in South Lowell on next Friday night and several matters of great moment will be brought before the gathering. The most important of the questions that are to be voted upon have reference to the new headquarters which it is the intention of the members to build and for which plans are already completed.

The problem which has first place in the minds of all concerned has to do with the location of this new club house. Two sites for the building are under consideration by the authorities, the first which is known as site No. 1 is situated on a knoll very conveniently near the grounds and cinder track.

The other, or site No. 2, would call for a removal of the club house outside the grounds. The old structure will in all probability be removed to which ever of the locations in question are decided upon at the meeting Friday evening.

Architect Graves has drawn up plans for a number of additions, alterations and improvements on the present quarters and it now rests with the members to arrive at a decision as to whether or not these will be made. A new stone foundation will be constructed when these matters have been agreed upon and the new club house will be a great improvement over the old one. The basement will comprise a rathskeller for the members and there will be installed new toilets, baths, a larger reception hall and up-to-date furnishings.

Another question is bound to arise at the next gathering and this is in regard to the additions to the athletic field. A vote will be taken Friday evening to ascertain whether or not the club will recommend the building of a high board fence about the cinder track and athletic field.

As soon as these matters are taken up and an agreement arrived at by the members, the work of carrying out the plans will be considered and another step made in the remarkable progress of this organization. The financial resources of the association are very encouraging and enthusiasm is growing every day. It is estimated that the 430 or more members of the United States Bunting club are possessed of an unsurpassed energy and loyal interest in clean sport and that they are determined to make their club the leading sporting organization in New England.

Greater interest than ever has been manifested in the Lawrence, Lowell and district football league this season and the games are for the most part enjoying large attendances. The teams are so evenly matched that the struggle for the championship is bound to be an exciting one.

JORDAN IN THE DEATH HOUSE

Prisoner Smiled on His Arrival at the State Prison

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—Chester S. Jordan, sentenced to be electrocuted during the week of Sept. 22 at the state prison in Charlestown for the murder of his wife at their home in Somerville, was removed from the East Cambridge jail to the state prison early last evening.

Jordan was transferred by Sheriff John R. Fairbank and Edward Fairbank, the sheriff's son, in Sheriff Fairbank's private carriage. They left the jail at 6:45 and arrived at the death house at the prison at 6:50 making the trip by way of the Prison Point bridge. The prisoner was handcuffed to Sheriff Fairbank, who stepped from the carriage first. Jordan walked nimbly down the narrow path to the entrance of the death house. He smiled as he saw a small gathering of men, who were anxious to get a last look at him.

He was neatly dressed in a dark blue suit. He wore a cap and in the lapel of his coat he wore a geranium which had been brought to him in the East Cambridge jail. He also carried a straw hat case, which contained a toilet set, articles of clothing, magazines and reading material pertaining to Christian Science.

Deputy Warden N. D. Allen was awaiting Jordan's arrival in the death house. They greeted each other cordially and conversed together. Deputy Allen explained that while at the prison he would be given the usual attention accorded men given sentences similar to his, that reasonable requests would be granted and that anything in the line of food or smoking materials he desired would be provided for him.

Jordan thanked Deputy Allen and said that he would cause no trouble whatever. Warden Bridges soon entered the death house and greeted Jordan, and soon afterward the warden, Sheriff and Edward Fairbank went to the prison office, where the sheriff delivered the commitment papers to the warden. Sheriff Fairbank said when he was leaving the prison that Jordan is a great, big, good-natured boy, and that he is pleasant and agreeable. He said Jordan enjoyed his supper before his departure from the jail and he never knew when he did not enjoy it while there. Jordan told the sheriff and his son good-bye before they left the death house and thanked them for their kindness in taking him to the state in the jail.

Following his talk with Deputy Warden Allen, Jordan divested himself of his cap, coat and shoes and put on slippers. He was assigned to cell No. 1, which was occupied by Bertrand G. Spencer, Monday night and recently by Clarence V. T. Gibson. This cell is the one nearest the execution room. Rev. Herbert W. Stephens, chaplain of the prison, visited Jordan about 7:15.

Jordan's only visitor at the jail yesterday was his spiritual advisor, G. Leonard MacNeil, Christian Science reader, who called at the death house and a half hour with the condemned man. While Jordan is at the prison it is expected Mr. MacNeil will be a daily visitor to him.

The kindly treatment of Deputy Warden Nathan D. Allen and the officers on duty in the death house to Jordan, Mr. Spencer, during his confinement in that institution was recognized and appreciated by Spencer, who wrote each of the three officers a note of appreciation and placed them in envelopes. On each envelope was the name of the officer and telling in his name of his kindness. It was cordially accepted and showed no signs of nervousness.

AN ENJOYABLE OUTING THE AUTOMOBILE OUTING

Street Railway Men Took For the Orphans Takes a Day Off Place Tomorrow

The motormen and conductors of the local branch of the Bay State Street Railway Co. held their annual outing yesterday at Canobie Lake park and was attended by a large number of guests from Nashua, Lawrence and Woburn. The party arrived at the park about ten o'clock in the morning and the sports began at once.

The principal feature was a ball game between the teams from Lawrence and Lowell and the latter were the victors by a score of 18-16. Dinner was served soon after 12 o'clock.

The following interesting series of sporting events occupied the afternoon: Quarter mile run, which was captured by Bert Day of Lawrence; prize, umbrella. TWO NEW WORLD'S RECORDS

Were Made at the Grand Circuit Races at Detroit Yesterday—Some Events Postponed

DETROIT, Sept. 18.—Although rain, which had threatened since early morning, put an end to Tuesday's Grand Circuit racing after five heats, the big crowd in the grandstand saw two new world's records made in the short time that the track was fit for use.

One of these was made in the two-year-old division of The Horseman Futurity, when Dillon Axworthy won the fourth heat, this being the fastest four-year-old ever trotted by the age, and displacing the record made by Oxford Boy 11 years ago.

The other record was a new mark for a winning first heat by a three-year-old gelding, when Brighton B landed the opening heat of the $10,000 part of the same futurity in 2:11 1/4, that colt lowering his own record of 2:12 1/4, made at Cleveland.

What would have been a day of great sport was spoiled by the down-pour. The speculation in the morning and early hours of the afternoon had been of blue ribbon caliber and it promised to continue through the program. The rain was of the drenching sort when it got under way, and after a short wait the racing was postponed until 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

The battle among the two-year-olds started on Monday when Lord Allen, Dillon Axworthy and Sweet Alice won heats in turn, was the event most talked about and the speculators made Lord Allen favorite at $50, Dillon Axworthy $40 and Sweet Alice $20.

Youngsters Get Away Well

The three went away well and soon Lord Allen was leading with Dillon Axworthy next. Lengths separated them along the back stretch. On the last turn Dillon Axworthy began to move up a little. Sweet Alice also closed in some when they reached the final straightaway and Dillon Axworthy continued to gain. At the seventh eighths McDonald rallied Lord Allen, but that colt could not trot away from the others. Dillon Axworthy trotting into the lead and when inside of the distance Sweet Alice also passing Allen and finishing a length back of Dillon Axworthy. The winner receives $2,000 and the other two divided second and third, each taking down $500.

Nine went to the score in the 3-year-old futurity and Brighton B was made favorite, the speculation being spirited. This colt brought $100 in pools in which Princess Todd, Mahomet Watts and Maurice sold for $50 each. Rhythm, $25, and the field $25.

The start was straggling and when they got settled into their places Mahomet Watts was leading with Brighton B next. On the back stretch Princess Todd was third and Maurice fourth. At the half, Mahomet Watts led a length on Brighton B. The turn came and Axworthy closed up a little with Brighton B and the stretch he gave the colt a mild drive, catching Mahomet Watts and then holding him safe to the end, winning by a long neck.

The pair were two lengths ahead of Princess Todd, which ally beat Maurice a head for third, and the others were going out. This was the only race in which the field was mixed. It was a somewhat, Deuchester was favorite at $50, Jean Arion and Sidanna bringing $30 and $20, respectively, and the field about $25.

In the first heat Sidanna got away well and held her lead to the turn, where Jean Arion was second, and when they reached the half Deuchester was third, with Thistle Doune fourth. Jean Arion looked to be a little ahead as they entered the stretch, but Sidanna responded to a drive and came back. Thistle Doune and Deuchester beating Jean Arion and joining Sidanna at the distance. A grand race followed and Sidanna won by a nose from Deuchester, with Thistle Doune the same distance back and Jean Arion half a length behind him.

Final Quarter in 29.3-4 Seconds.

Deuchester made the early pace in the second heat with Robert Milroy and Thistle Doune close up. They were in a bunch when they straightened away for the final effort and in a hard drive Robert Milroy beat Thistle Doune, Jean Arion nosing Deuchester out for third.

In the 2 1/2 mile pace, which is for $5,000, Joe Patchen II, "The Big Train," was in the field. This great pacer brought $100 against $15 on the others.

As soon as they were under way Joe Patchen II stepped out to the front and never was in trouble as the pace to the half was slow. Fleming let him step the last part and he came the final quarter in 29.3-4 seconds. Grand Opera had been second all the way, but in the stretch there was a rush, Cox bringing Mansfield up and apparently nipping Grand Opera, which horse broke before he got to the wire. The judges saw Grand Opera second, but almost everybody had the other one in that place. Cox made a protest, but it proved futile. Barring Insect Infested Plants

On August 10th the house of representatives passed a bill introduced last May by Representative James S. Simmons of Niagara Falls, N. Y., regulating the importation of plant products. Under this bill it will be unlawful for any person to import into the United States any nursery stock except under permit from the secretary of agriculture and under conditions and regulations prescribed by him. The United States is the only great power without protection from importation of insect-infested or diseased plant stock. Diseased livestock is excluded by law, but diseased plants have as yet not been barred.

"HARVARTON," a formal looking collar for informal wear. The parallel lines of this new style make it entirely distinctive.

It's a great favorite with college men everywhere. Snappy, Stylish, Effective. "YALE-TON" is the same collar but lower. Both made with the famous "Slip-Over" Button-holes, and Patented "Lock-that-Locks."

Good dressers consider HARVARTON with SIMPLEX the usual bottom combination. United Shirt & Collar Co., Makers, Troy, N. Y.

"Gyp the Blood" and "Lefty Louie" to Have

A Preliminary Hearing September 18th

"GYP THE BLOOD" "LEFTY LOUIE" DETECTIVE DOUGHERTY

THE RIBBON FLOWERS

Are a Great Boom to the Impecunious

Flowers made from satin and silk are expensive to buy, but that does not mean that these dainty trimmings are difficult to make, merely that the charge is made for the handwork.

Any woman who has plenty of time at her disposal may make a variety of these blossoms to adorn her hats and dresses. A wreath of roses can be used to great advantage in a variety of ways. To make the roses take five pieces of two inch wide ribbon, each piece two and a half inches long. From the same ribbon cut two circles, one an inch in diameter and the other a little larger. Take a three inch length of millinery wire (silk covered), make a little loop in the end and twist cotton wool around to form a tiny ball. Gather the edge of the smaller circle of ribbon, slip this over the cotton wool around to form a tiny ball. Gather the edge of the smaller circle of ribbon, slip this over the cotton wool, pull the thread tight and twist it several times around the base.

Now proceed to make the petals. Double the larger circle in half, gather the edge and fold around the center ball. Fold each two inch length in half, roll over the top corners outward and backward, put a stitch in each coil to hold it in position and gather the raw edges. When the five petals are made, arrange them as naturally as possible and bind them in place. Secure by stitching.

The calyx is made of soft green ribbon, three-quarters of an inch wide. Divide four inches into four (by creasing, not cutting) and gather along one edge, running the needle up and down the creases to bring the ribbon into the required shape.

When as many roses as are needed for the wreath are made, make a circle of strong wire, twist the stems into this and cover the binding with twisted ribbon.

A spray composed of one or two large roses with buds and leaves, all made of ribbon, forms an attractive belt bouquet. To make the flowers and buds look more natural cut the blossoms and thick green base of the blossoms from ordinary artificial flowers. Take a piece of thick wire and wrap the looped end round and round with cotton wool until a firm round ball is formed. Cover this with pink silk.

Take a piece of ribbon six inches long and three inches wide. Gather it along both edges with a double heading at one end only. Arrange this around the ball with the heading at the top. Next make twelve petals as already described (but using single ribbon), rolling the edges outward and backward so that the petals are almost pointed in the center. Bind them closely into position and slip the artificial base and stem over the wire.

To make the buds cut two triangular pieces of silk, sew them together along two sides, stuff with cotton wool and gather the edges. Bind two narrow petals firmly to the wire and slip on the stem. Make the leaves of soft silk three and one-half inches long by two inches wide. Double them and sew along the edge, turn inside out and fold them so that the seam lies down the center. Gather at the lower edge and bind the leaves to a silk covered wire.

Greatest Sea Depth

The greatest depth of the sea that has yet been measured was reported by the survey ship "Planet" to be at a point 40 miles off the northern coast of the Island of Mindanao, one of the Philippine group, where a depth of 52,000 feet or over six miles was registered.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—"Gyp the Blood" Horowitz and "Lefty Louie" Rosenberg will have a preliminary hearing today on the charge of murdering Herman Rosenthal. They are held in the Tombs without bail. Their wives, who were with them when they were arrested in a flat at 740 Woodward avenue, Brooklyn, have been held as material witnesses and are in the house of detention.

LAST NIGHT'S RALLIES

In Interest of Congressional Candidates

Rallies in the interest of Humphrey O'Sullivan's candidacy for congress were held in the Associate building and in the Fayette street school polling booth last evening. The polling booth was filled to overflowing and the meeting was nothing if not enthusiastic. William F. Curtin presided and the speakers included Humphrey O'Sullivan, Hon. James E. Casey and J. Joseph O'Connor. All of the speakers were well received and Mr. O'Sullivan was given a most hearty reception.

Michael J. Donohue presided at the meeting in the Associate building. This was a rally of wards 2 and 3 democrats and it was a rousing rally, too. Mr. O'Sullivan addressed the meeting and was cheered to the echo. Other speakers included Daniel J. Bennett and James F. Miskel.

There were loud speeches at both rallies and great enthusiasm prevailed. Chairman Donohue stated that Mr. O'Sullivan had already gone all over the vast district and has his plans made for the hottest battle that has ever been seen in Massachusetts. If O'Sullivan be nominated, the speaker said, nothing could stop his election.

MUST GIVE UP CHILD

Court Decides Against Lowell Woman

Judge Sheldon of the supreme court yesterday ordered a writ of habeas corpus to issue on a petition brought by Mrs. Frances P. Kaplan directing Mrs. Rose A. Condon of Lowell to deliver to Mrs. Kaplan her 5-year-old son, Peter J. Condon.

The father of the child, James M. Condon, was killed July 5, 1909, while dropping from a parachute at Portland. The mother married again and tried to get the child, who was living with his grandmother. The latter refused to give it up and this proceeding was brought.

94TH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

Observed by Mrs. Taylor at the Home of Her Daughter in Methuen Street

Mrs. Jane F. Taylor, who previously to her coming to Lowell was a resident of Maine, having been among the early settlers and pioneers of that state, celebrated her 94th birthday yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. A. Robinson, 151 Methuen street.

Mrs. Taylor was born in the little settlement of New Portland, Maine, in the year 1818 and lived there for 35 years on the same farm. The dwellings at that time were for the most part log cabins, for the country was but sparsely settled. Her parents were born in Scotland and came to this country in 1812 after a six weeks' sail during which they encountered extremely rough weather. They first settled in North Andam and afterwards moved to the farm in New Portland, where they owned 100 acres of land.

It was under great difficulties that Mrs. Taylor received her early education for she was obliged to travel a distance of several miles to the school house which then was nothing more than a roughly constructed log cabin. On account of the over abundance of work which had to be done about the farm, the school term had to be surprisingly short, extending through not more than four or five weeks in the winter. People in those days had little time to devote to the pursuit of a higher education and culture and were considered very fortunate if they could find an opportunity of learning to read and write with pen or a dim knowledge of the more simple problems of arithmetic. According to Mrs. Taylor, people who complain of being obliged to work too hard nowadays in reality do not know what hard work is as did the early settlers who knew not a day of absolute rest.

When visited by a Sun reporter yesterday, the aged lady gave many interesting accounts of her experiences and related anecdotes with a direct bearing on the history of the country. She has a clear recollection of the Civil war, and can recall the occasion of the inauguration of Andrew Jackson as president of the United States. To obtain supplies and the necessities of life, the settlers at the place where Mrs. Taylor lives were obliged to travel miles over a trail marked by a spotted tree, otherwise known as a "blaze" trail, and then ran the risk of meeting wild beasts which were dangerously numerous in that country then. She said that the settlers used to kill many bears and other animals such as deer and wild cats.

In spite of her extreme age, Mrs. Taylor is very active and takes a lively interest in the affairs of the day, the knowledge of which she obtains by reading the newspapers. Her eyesight is very good and she uses glasses only for close work, and her hearing is perfect. Her great hobby and one of which she is justly proud is her fancy work, such as embroidery, pillows and table pieces, etc. One of her pillows was exhibited at the Middlesex fair and won first prize. Her work along this line is wonderful and her patterns are most difficult. She is a very good pianist and takes a keen delight in writing letters to her numerous friends.

When asked if she was not interested in the present complicated condition of the politics of the country she quickly replied: "I have my fancy work to do and find no time to bother with politics, but I am a democrat and my father was one before me and no matter who is elected, they cannot change that."

A number of near relatives and friends of Mrs. Taylor gathered at the home to offer their congratulations and wishes for many happy returns of the day. Refreshments were served and they were royally entertained, for Mrs. Taylor, among other numerous accomplishments, is an ideal hostess.

LT. MAHER FOUND WATCH MAN INSTANTLY KILLED

Taken From House in Humphrey Street He Fell From Roof of Building

A residence in Humphrey street was broken into last week and a valuable stop watch was stolen. The matter was reported to the police and through the efforts of Lieut. Martin Maher the timepiece was recovered.

An entrance was gained through a back door in the rear of the house and the boy, who it was afterward found, had the watch, made his way through the cellar into the kitchen and then into an upper room where he removed the watch from a drawer in a cabinet. Although he had been seen in the room by neighbors he denied that he had been in the house and when the matter was reported to the police Lieut. Maher put the boy through a rigid examination and succeeded in locating the watch under the steps of the rear piazza of the house in which the boy lives.

MATRIMONIAL

St. Patrick's rectory was yesterday the scene of a very pretty wedding, when Mr. Homer Gill, popular employe at Bartlett & Dow's hardware store and a well known member of the C. M. A. C. and Miss Helen Sabro, a trained nurse, were united in the bonds of matrimony. The ceremony which was private took place at 2:30 o'clock, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Timothy P. Callahan.

The happy couple were attended by a host of the bridegroom, Mr. Edmond Gill, and a sister of the bride, Miss Margaret Sabro, who acted as best man and bridesmaid, respectively. The bride looked charming in a fine gown of grey silk, while the bridesmaid wore a neat costume of blue silk.

After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of the bride's parents, 8 Craney ave., where a brief reception to the immediate family and friends was held. Mr. and Mrs. Gill left on the 5:42 o'clock train for New Hampshire where they will spend a couple of weeks. They will be at home to their friends at 8 Craney avenue after Sept. 25.

MATRIMONIAL

Miss Edith Watkins, daughter of Eli Watkins of Milford, N. H., and Raymond Sargent, son of Rev. and Mrs. F. J. Sargent of Washington, N. H., were united in marriage at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Phillips of the Chestnut street church yesterday. The ceremony was held on the grounds of the church, the bride being attended by Mr. Fred Watkins, brother of the bride and Mr. Louis Merrill, nephew of the bride. The bride was a ring set with a single pearl and to his attendants, gold ring set with a single pearl. The bride's gifts to her attendants were gold pens. Following the ceremony a buffet lunch was served on the lawn, after which Mr. and Mrs. Sargent, and the bride and groom, left for New York city. After a few days spent there they go to their home in Rochester, N. Y., where Mr. Sargent is employed by the firm of Humphreys Bros. They were the recipients of many beautiful gifts from their numerous friends, who wish them much happiness in their new life.

150th Anniversary

BOWDOINHAM, Me., Sept. 18.—Many old residents and visitors from far and near assisted in the celebration today of the 150th anniversary of the incorporation of Bowdoinham as a town. One of the features of the day was the program at the literary exercises which included an oration by Rev. Henry Dunham of Augusta on "The Story of Bowdoinham."

THE WORLD'S SERIES

Arrangements For the Games in Boston

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—The business and of baseball in the form of arrangements for games in this city in the coming world championship baseball series—is having long times at Fenway park these days, while the Red Sox are on the road seeking to clinch their claim to the American league championship and the consequent right to contend for the big prize of baseball. A force of nearly 100 clerks and carpenters is at work daily to complete the arrangements for accommodating between 50,000 and 35,000 persons at each of the games expected to be played here.

The carpenters are repairing temporary stands on every inch of available space. Ten thousand seats in addition to the normal capacity of 22,000 seats is expected to result from their labors. The clerks, working often into the evening, have each day a fresh pile of correspondence from all parts of the country regarding the 15,000 seats which will be reserved. This correspondence has been so great as literally to swamp the augmented office facilities of the local club for some days past. To prevent a reversion of the troubles which attended the distribution of tickets for the last world series the Boston management has adopted an elaborate system of protection against the securing of tickets by speculators. This has added greatly to the clerical staff, but it is expected it will effectively assure the baseball public a fair deal in the allotment of seats.

American Vessel Makes Record

An American sailing vessel, the "Zerkow M. Thayer," made a voyage from Honolulu to Philadelphia in 110 days, and she has to her credit also a voyage from Norfolk to Honolulu in 107 days, the fastest time ever made since the program of the literary exercises which included an oration by Rev. Henry Dunham of Augusta on "The Story of Bowdoinham."

Her latest voyage is the fastest that ever made by a sailing ship on the eastern voyage.

SAYS HE IS VICTIM OF HATE

Former Millionaire Arrested at Stoneham is Charged With Being Fugitive

BOSTON, Sept. 15.—Once the leading leather merchant of Bristol, Eng., reputed to be worth a million dollars, respected by the leading merchants of England, and having unlimited credit, William Vassier Collier, 56 years of age, now penniless with a wife and four children in this country, was yesterday placed under arrest at Stoneham, charged by English authorities with being a fugitive from justice.

Real Life Rivals Fiction

The life of Collier rivals fiction. Married to a woman prominent in English circles of aristocracy, possessing great wealth and counting an unlimited number of leading English officials and business men among his friends, the son of an ex-mayor of Northampton, he lived in a year of his life and his wife without a home.

His business grew, and he became a dishonest and evasive even to find work, he left England, nine months after his failure, with two sons, graduates of Oxford University, who were in business with him, and all three came to this country.

He was one of the best leather importers in England, and traded principally with the Van Tassel Leather company of Stoneham, and had met E. D. Van Tassel many times in England and this country.

On his arrival with his sons in this country he went immediately to the Van Tassel company in Stoneham with his two sons, and all three secured positions, working at the start for the meager sum of $2 a week. From his first position, that of cleaning the leather, he rose to a leather sorter and was able to send to England for his wife, who arrived in Boston several months ago, after undergoing a critical operation.

Life for the family in this country seemed to contain a few bright rays of sunshine and Collier's two daughters came across to join him. The oldest son, a short time ago sent to England, for his former sweetheart, married her, and the entire family lived happy and contented in a cottage at 24 Congress street, Stoneham.

Arrested For Fraud

Yesterday while at work in the tannery with his two sons he was placed under arrest, charged with fraud, by making false entries in certain documents, a statement of account and balance sheets, of Hudd & Collier, in the year 1909, with intent to defraud the Hudd company, and the George Angus Co., two of his largest creditors, when he failed.

Yesterday John Elliott Bell, acting consul general in this state for England, acting upon instructions from England, applied for a warrant, which was granted Monday by United States Commissioner Hayes.

Thinking his past forgotten, still held in implicit trust by his faithful wife and family, the tears of bitter grief, poured down his cheeks when, yesterday afternoon, Deputy United States Marshal Bancroft, wheeled him under arrest. Owing to the fact that his arrest was based on extradition proceedings, no surities were permissible, and he was held without bail for a hearing before the federal government Friday. He was lodged in the East Cambridge jail.

Heart-broken over her husband's misfortunes and nearly prostrated by his arrest, Mrs. Collier, a white-haired, distinguished woman bearing all the indications of culture, yesterday brandished a base untruth the statement of the English authorities that he had fled from England to escape from arrest.

LOWELL GIRLS

Left This Week to Enter Smith College—The Term Begins Next Monday

During the past few days many Lowell young ladies left this city for Northampton, Mass., to attend the well known Smith college, located there. The session of the college opens on Monday. This morning four girls took the train from the local station and as the baggage of several others is at the depot none are expected during the remainder of the week.

Two immigrants arrived on the Fall River boat train this morning, coming here from their native land, via New York. After transferring their baggage, both went to Lawrence.

Several of the morning trains were behind schedule this morning, the delays being due to the heavy traveling.

GIRLS! GIRLS! SURELY TRY THIS! DOUBLES BEAUTY OF YOUR HAIR

All you need is a 25 cent bottle of "Danderine"—Hair gets lustrous, fluffy and abundant

Immediate?—Yes! Certain?—That's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

A delightful surprise awaits, particularly those who have been careless, whose hair has been neglected or is scrappy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff, cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use of Danderine, when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it, surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.

MURDERED WOMAN IDENTIFIED

She Was Mrs. Roberts of Gloucester—Police Are Baffled by the Mystery

MANCHESTER, Sept. 15.—The identity of the woman found floating in the Manchester river late Monday afternoon was established late yesterday when Benjamin H. Roberts of Gloucester told Chief of Police Converse that he was positive that the body was that of his wife. The general description of the body and the identification of the clothing satisfied the chief and Mr. Roberts that the dead woman was Mrs. Roberts.

Mrs. Roberts, whom Medical Examiner George A. Stinchey of Beverly declared had been killed by violence, disappeared from her home, 10 Centennial avenue, Gloucester, a week ago last Monday, Sept. 9. She spent the day with Mrs. T. L. White of Central street, Manchester, and late that night started for her home. Mrs. White accompanied her to the railroad station about 11 o'clock and chatted for a few moments with her guest in the railroad station. Mrs. White then left Mrs. Roberts to await the arrival of the 12:14 train for Gloucester.

Since then no one, as far as could be learned last night, saw her alive again.

Children Called for Mamma

When Mrs. Roberts did not return to her home early on the morning of Sept. 10 her husband, who is a watchman at Reed's wharf in that city, did not become unduly alarmed. He thought that perhaps his wife was out over night in Manchester, but the next day, when the two little children, a boy and a girl, began to cry for their mamma, he made some inquiries.

Mr. and Mrs. Roberts had been married a little more than six years and according to the husband the domestic relations were happy.

During the week that elapsed between the disappearance of his wife and the finding of the body in the Manchester river, within a quarter of a mile of the apartment walks that checks the water at Central avenue, the husband waited for some word of his wife.

When he read the story of the finding of the body of the woman he suspected the body was that of his wife.

Sure Victim Was His Wife

Yesterday afternoon, after Medical Examiner Stinchey had performed the autopsy on the body in a barn in Beverly, and after the remains had been interred in North Beverly cemetery, the husband of the dead woman called upon Undertaker Gentile at Beverly and asked to see the body. He was referred to the medical examiner and as a result of the description furnished by the latter official Roberts became satisfied that it was his wife's body that was found floating in the water.

In addition to the general description there were distinguishing marks that left no doubt as to the identity. When the husband of the woman called at the Hamilton police station at 10:30 last night and viewed the clothing hanging from the cell doors of the lock-up the last vestige of doubt disappeared. He stated positively that the woman was his wife.

Chief Says Man is in the Case

Chief Converse and State Officer Keating, who were called into the case yesterday afternoon at the request of the local police, are confident that what appears to be a baffling murder mystery, notwithstanding that Chief Converse stated last night that he felt that he could locate the woman with a man on the night of her disappearance.

The autopsy yesterday afternoon revealed that her life was extinct before the body reached the water. Medical Examiner Stinchey is satisfied that the woman died as the result of a blow, or blows, from some blunt instrument. There was a jagged wound behind the left ear, near the base of the skull and the left side of the face and head was bruised. The flesh part of the left cheek bone was badly fractured and the lips were also bruised and discolored.

Thought Victim Mrs. Wade

Several of the townspeople viewed the remains of the woman after it was removed Sunday, and some insisted that it was the body of a resident of the town, Mrs. Benjamin Wade, who disappeared nearly a month ago. When Mrs. Wade's father, Francis Wade, stated that the body was not his daughter's, the police were perplexed.

That Mrs. Roberts was murdered without the aid of Manchester police, the belief of Chief Converse and others. Old-time residents of the town, in substantiation of their claims that the woman met her death inside the harbor limits, or at least that the body was thrown into the water at the land side of the harbor, claim that no body has ever known to float ashore from the harbor.

There have been scores of drowning accidents in the outside harbor, but not one body has been recovered, including Ram Island. The Manchester river is a narrow arm of the sea, which brings up against a dead wall at Central street in the center of the town. The body was found less than a quarter of a mile from the town hall.

Scene Placed at Long Beach

Although the police had no tangible clue to work upon before dusk, Chief Converse and State Officer Keating boarded a power boat late in the afternoon and cruised over the waters of Manchester river and the harbor. They carefully scrutinized the rocky shores, which are surrounded by handsome estates, and cruised out as far as Mystery and Ram Islands.

Last night there was a well-grounded theory that the murder was committed at a point near the entrance to the harbor. Chief Converse would not deny that he strongly favored the theory that Mrs. Roberts was slain in a secluded spot on a beach not far away from Ram Island, called Long Beach, about a mile and a half from the town. He steadfastly refused to state whether or not he placed a great deal of dependence on the supposition that the woman was lured to a fisherman's shack and perhaps slain before the isolated place was reached.

To Question Man

Chief Converse admitted that there was one beach in particular that would afford the opportunity for taking human life. At this beach the houses set well back from the water front and at the hour at which Mrs. Roberts is supposed to have been killed the neighborhood would not be disturbed unless by some unusual commotion.

Before the identification of the body was established beyond doubt, it was said that if the victim proved to be the Roberts woman there was a strong probability of the police placing her in company with a man on Sept. 9, and that this man, who is now a resident of Manchester, would be questioned sharply.

The motive of robbery is scouted, and Chief Converse will call the services of the Gloucester police in the hope of finding out if Mrs. Roberts had any suitors. The officers will also try to trace the movements of Mrs. Roberts from the time she reached the railroad station with Mrs. White.

SOMETHING NEW IN DRESS GOODS

Scintella is a silken, silvery glow, over a surface of a darker tone or color. Very attractive, but to be appreciated one should see it.

It is lightweight, having enough body to give it richness. As good results in straight effects, as in soft folds and fullness. Its silky surface makes it as dressy as silk, but is more durable. Supple and pliable, it still has sufficient resistance to prevent wrinkling.

Suitable for frocks, for short trips or week-end stays, as it packs snugly without crushing. Can be fashioned into a good wearing gown, not too dressy for most occasions and dressy enough for most any occasion. 15 inches wide. Obtainable in a variety of colors and in light and dark tones.

ILLUMINATED FIRE STATION MAP

When a big fire occurs in any section of a large city, and the fire apparatus in that section, and after leaving its house, are called into service, and in getting this cause of the fire, the fire station is the first place to be reached. The map of this station on the map becomes dark.

such situations in Chicago, the fire alarm headquarters in the city hall is provided with a map of the city on which each fire house is designated by a small electric light bulb, operated by a switchboard. These bulbs are illuminated during the time the apparatus of each fire station is in its house, but as soon as the apparatus leaves its house, a plus bearing the number of the station in question is removed from the switchboard and the bulb designating this station on the map becomes dark.

the map suffices to show the unprotected territory, and the fire apparatus not in actual use are distributed accordingly. This is one of the first maps of this type in America. They have been used for some time in Germany. Milwaukee has a fire map of a somewhat similar type.

"Only One Tobacco in the World," says Geo. M. Cohan, Celebrated Actor, "And That is Tuxedo"

"It's great to see you, old man! Come in! Sit down! How are you? Have a smoke? Oh, take a pipe—always carry 'em for my friends. Nothing so companionable when old pals meet!"

Geo. M. Cohan, the bustling, bustling, breezy author, actor, composer and manager, had just returned from Europe. "Smoke Tuxedo? Don't have any other," he said. "Only brand I smoke. It's only ten cents—and it's the best ever."

"Say—before you ask it: Don't! Don't ask me to say what I think of Europe. It's not necessary. I'm going to tell you. The way they hoodoo us Americans, get us over there, and then refuse us our favorite luxuries in life! Well—it's the limit."

"Now take me. I'm not at home without my pipe. It's a small enough comfort to allow a man. But in France I couldn't smoke. They gave us fine wine, and spiced snails, and other pleasing edibles—but tobacco! Wow!"

"Tuxedo is the only thing I smoke. It's the only tobacco I consent to smoke. I've had my experience, with tobacco and girls, as most men have. And, like most men, I've selected one tobacco and one girl. In Paris, the home of champagne and crisettes, they sell little cigarettes strong enough to blow off your head. As for cigars—well, steer clear of them. And smoking tobacco—that was the limit. In England, too—the dear, jolly chaps handed out cans of tobacco just trickling with perfume. It smelled nice—if you like perfume. But it smoked rottenly.

"I said America and Tuxedo for me. Why, listen, old man, it's the deuce to go without your smoke. It makes you feel like walking the street without your coat. 'Pon my soul, I thought I'd do a rah-rah shouting act when I got on the boat and found Tuxedo on sale."

"One unique thing about Tuxedo, you fill your pipe and puff leisurely away for hours. It doesn't burn up as some tobaccos do. It burns slowly, and with a smoke that has a soft aroma. You get more joy from a given quantity, because of its slow consumption and its incomparable delicacy, than from any tobacco I know. One thing puzzles me—that's why no one in this age of competition and imitation has ever been able to equal Tuxedo. D'you know?"

RED SOX DROPPED TWO GAMES

To Cleveland Naps—First Went
Eleven Innings, With Collins
Opposing Gregg

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 18.—Cleveland took two games from Boston yesterday, thereby preventing the leaders from clinching the 1912 pennant.

Both games were close, Cleveland winning each time in the final turn at bat. The first game, a pitchers' battle between Collins and Gregg went eleven innings, finally being lost by Boston on successive hits by Turner, Jackson and Lajoie. Carlisle featured this game by making three singles, a double and a triple in five times at bat. In the second game, after Boston had taken the lead in the fourth inning, Cleveland came right back and won the game on a pass to Turner, out by Jackson and Lajoie and hit by Hendrix and Grane.

BASES ON BALLS FATAL

Control Is Most Important to Pitchers

Bases on balls are the surest way to lose ball games, and the only wonder is that more young pitchers show so little sense and ambition about improving their control. Observation of the leading pitchers of the country will show conclusively that control is perhaps the most essential feature of real success in the pitching line, and yet scores of young pitchers break in, with everything in their favor, if they are willing to work hard, who lose their chance for big success by failing to realize the tremendous importance of sure control of the ball.

Frank Bancroft of Cincinnati tells with pride of the way Charlie Radbourne, as great a pitcher as ever lived, used to go out by himself in the morning and practice throwing at a bottle set up on a post about the height of a man's belt. He would not rest until he had gained the ability to knock the bottle off the post whenever he wished to. This was the basic secret of his great success. He could always put the ball wherever he wanted to.

Mathewson has always had perfect control of every kind of ball he uses. So has Johnson. So has every first class pitcher. Rube Marquard, when he first joined the Giants, was as wild as a hawk and was perfectly worthless to the club until long practice gave him the control which he needed. Today he is a winner because he can put the ball anywhere he wants to at any time and for any batter.

The pitcher who cannot do this will not be a real success. Big curves and great speed amount to little or nothing if the enemy is going to be favored with a walk every inning or so at a critical time. But, though control is mainly a matter of steady and faithful practice, there are very few young pitchers who will take the trouble to do any extra work in the effort to secure it, so when their trial comes they give a couple of bases on balls at the wrong time and look like 50 cents when, with control, they might have made good.

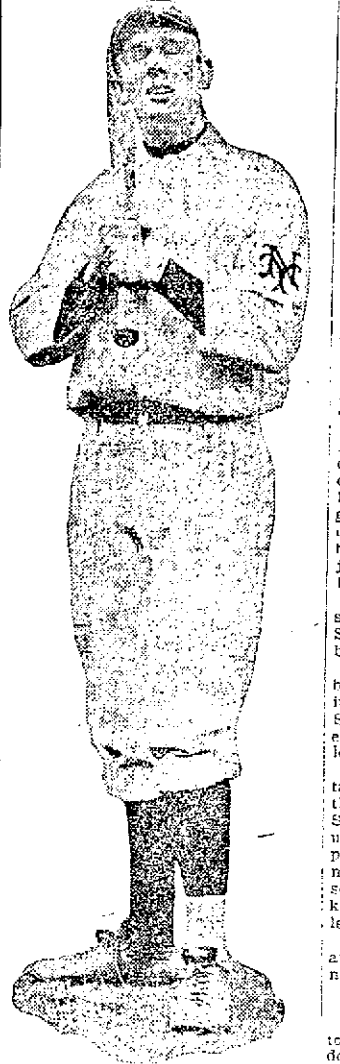

Bases on balls have done more to lose ball games than any one factor in the sport. The pitcher who is too free with them will never be a winner, and the youngster who realizes this fact and spends some extra energy if only he could have got the time practicing his control will always ball over the plate.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Chicago won the deciding game of their three games series here yesterday when they hit Marquard hard in the second and third innings. The score was 5 to 2. Granddaddy, who relieved Marquard, was invincible and held Chicago to three hits. Cheney was effective in every inning but the fifth when New York bunched three hits with a muff by Sheekard and scored three runs. Evers was put out of the game by Empire Evers in the sixth inning when he was called out trying to stretch a single into a double.Phillies Losing Streak Broken
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18.—Philadelphia's losing streak was broken yesterday when Cincinnati was defeated, 7 to 1. The visitors were unable to solve Seaton's delivery. The game was won in the fourth inning when the home team bunched three hits off Seaton, coupled with three errors and a passed ball by Cincinnati.Brooklyn Defeats Pirates

To Be Tested at Meeting of Republican National Committee to Be Held Today
NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The loyalty of the members of the republican national committee to President Taft was to be tested at a meeting called for that purpose today. Members of the committee intimated that some of the members were working for Col. Roosevelt and that these members would be dropped.

National Chairman Hilles declined to say what committee would be investigated nor would he say what the procedure would be in purging the committee of disaffected members. It is understood that all committee members will be asked to declare themselves for the republican national ticket. Some resignations have already been received from members, who are working openly for Col. Roosevelt. These resignations were to be acted upon today.

MARQUARD'S POSITION AT BAT

BRITTON GIVEN AWARD

His Go With Saylor Was Disappointing

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—Owing to the hastiness of the referee in declaring a foul, Jack Britton of Chicago was given the decision over Young Saylor of Indianapolis in the sixth round at the Pilgrim A. A. last night. The bout was limited to 12 rounds and the large crowd present was only able to see the contest when it came to an unsatisfactory end.

Saylor had a number of times violated the agreement to break clean and had repeated when the referee stopped the bout yet none of the blows did Britton any harm and he had made no complaint.

There was disappointment when Britton was sent to his corner and declared the winner. Few had seen a questionable blow, but Saylor did, however, hit Britton low. They were getting ready to break away from a clinch when Saylor started a right-handed punch for the body. Britton jumped a bit in the air and the blow landed on his hip bone.

Up to the time that the bout was stopped Britton had a big lead on Saylor, but there was little difference between them in strength.

Britton gave the same classy exhibition that he did against Murphy and it looked like a sure victory for him. Saylor is such a cunning boxer, however, that he might have turned what looked like defeat into a victory.

Britton had no trouble shooting his tantalizing left into Saylor's face, and the latter did considerable covering up. Several times in the clinches Saylor used his favorite over and underhand punch, but Britton did not appear to mind it. The Chicago boxer swung some hard rights to Saylor's ribs and kidneys and several times followed with left hooks into the stomach.

Saylor showed that he was pained at being hit so often by Britton and not being able to get in a return.

Coming and Going Notes of the Great National Game,

President Somers of the Naps, said the other day that the word "acting" should not precede Birmingham's title of "manager." "Joe is manager," said the owner of the Naps. "He is in full charge, to sign or release, to run the team as he sees fit, being clothed with authority to exert the proper discipline. I believe he can secure just as good results as Stovall did a year ago."

According to advice from Cincinnati, efforts are being made to arrange a boxing contest between Larry McLean, catcher of the Cincinnati Reds, and Charley Schmidt, the former Detroit catcher, who is now with the Providence club, during the coming world's series. The plan is to stage the contest in either Boston or New York. No such contest is likely, however, as the National Commission will speedily interfere if the promoters go very far in their activities. Schmidt was prominently mentioned as a white hope about 18 months ago, and during the off season of 1911-12 he engaged in a boxing contest in the Southwest. It was declared at that time that he had ambitions to box Jack Johnson. McLean, because of his great stature, has often been referred to as a white hope, but he has shown no strong desire to enter the ring. It probably would not be difficult to secure the player's consent for such a bout, and the contest would undoubtedly prove a big money maker if staged at the time when either city would be the Mecca of so many ball players and fans. But the National Commission would not countenance any such exhibition, and if the Commission's orders should be disobeyed the two players would be subject to heavy fines and perhaps indefinite suspensions from baseball.

It is possible that Clark Griffith will be made president of the Washington club to fill the vacancy caused by the death of President Naves. Griffith is one of the heaviest stockholders in the club, and several of the other stockholders have wanted him to accept the presidency.

Clark Griffith is more than pleased with the job that the new manager purchased from the Denver club, of the Western League. He stated last week that the work of the former Denver player was much better than he expected and he considered Kenworthy the find of the year.

Griffith deserves a lot of credit for his fighting spirit. He has infused into his players. There have been several occasions this year when many a team in the position the Nationals were in would have given up after striking a series of reverses, but not so with Griffith's players.

Manager Wolverton, of the Highlanders, once asked Sterrett which he played better, first base or backstop. "I can't play either of them," replied the collegian. "When I was at Princeton I thought I could, but since I got into the big league I am learning differently." However, Sterrett is learning fast.

Manager George Stovall, by the way, has been so successful with the Browns during the last two months that great things are predicted by the St. Louis fans for next season.

Joe Birmingham is the seventh manager the Naps have had since the expansion of the American League. His predecessors in order were McAleer, Armour, McGuire, Lajoie, Stovall and Davis.

The veteran Jesse C. Burkett has agreed to again manage the Worcester team next season. There was some talk to the effect that the old scout would retire from the team, but the latest announcement from Worcester says that he will again direct the team and this time he hopes will win another pennant.

Some days ago Tug Arundel died. It was announced that he was the umpire in the New York State league. Such is not so. Tug Arundel was a player 30 years ago, playing in several and good luck to his successor here in leagues. The Arundel, who made such a hit in the New York State league this summer is Tom Arundel, formerly of Lawrence. He is far from dead, being alive and well and looked to umpire in the American association next season.

Jack Slattery and Mike Lynch may not be back with Lawrence next season. Slattery went to Lawrence to finish out the season and help Lawrence win the pennant. Slattery may be back with some club in the International league in 1913. He was out of that league last season on account of illness and the death of his father. He hopes to be back next year.

Lynch had a non-reserved arrangement and he, too, may cast his lot with some other team. He was satisfied in Lawrence, though, and may decide to return to that city. The past was Lynch's worst year with the stick and his poor stickwork worried him to the extent that he did not field as well as he had been known to.

Deacon Morrissey, the former New England leaguer, played this past season with Newport News in the Virginia league. He was fined $5 for engaging in a strike against Manager J. J. Grim.

White Sox, who went to the White Sox with the reputation for fence busting has failed to live up to his reputation, and the chances are that he will give way to Roland Barrows the former Lowell captain. Barrows has hit at a terrific clip for the Jersey City team of the International league this year and is now back with the Chicago outfit and it looks like a good bet that he is going to stick this time.

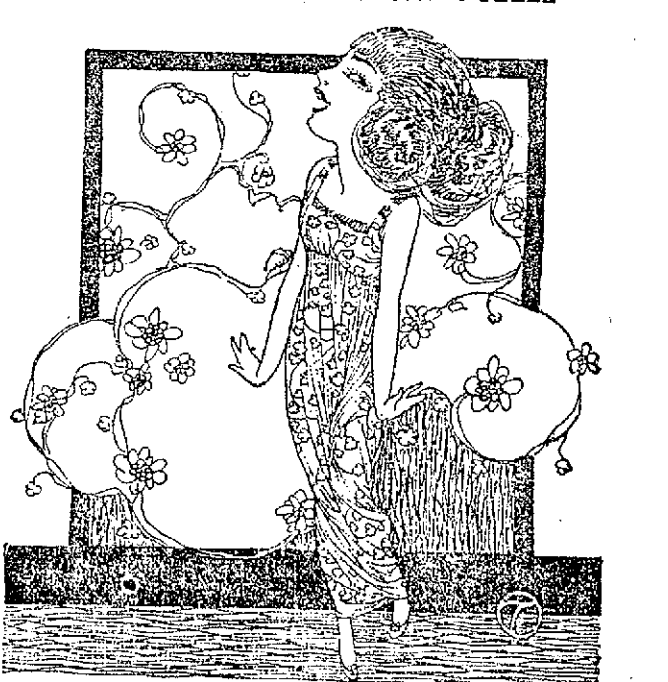

Fred "Klondike" Smith of N. E. league continues to do good work for the Rochester team of the International league. He is leading that team off in the batting order, is hitting and fielding well and Rochester is well satisfied with him.

Billy Smith will manage Atlanta next year. The announcement came from Billy while in Montgomery recently, and while it caused very little excitement, it filled the thoughts of the fans completely. Smith has not been ever successful here in the two years he has been with us, and there will be some who will glad to see a new man take hold of the team in 1913. Both the 1911 and 1912 teams looked pretty good, particularly the last, but for some reason or other, both failed to deliver the goods up to square. Smith knows base ball and has been a very successful manager in the past, so there must have been reasons that were not apparent to the public. He has many friends in Chattanooga who will hate to see him go, but he will have to go to Atlanta to look out for himself. It is a cinch that he can not do worse in Atlanta than those who have managed the team this year, and I hope he will do much better. Norman (Kline) Eberfield, veteran infielder and native of Chattanooga, now with Montgomery, was signed last week to manage the Chattanooga team for next year. The local management made strenuous efforts to have him join the team at once, but Dobbs stated that he was making a first division fight in Montgomery and wanted to keep him until the end of the season. League rules would also have prevented his playing with the Chattanooga club this year. The new manager will have a far easier task than did Smith, when the latter took hold of the team two years ago. Practically a full team is ready to begin training next March, and there are many good men in the squad. There will be some changes, and most likely more men will be signed. It seems to be Smith's luck to give his successors the benefit of the team he has built up. There is not a better judge of players in the business than he, but the next manager usually is the one to profit from Smith's labors. Good luck to Smith in Atlanta player 30 years ago, playing in several and good luck to his successor here in leagues. The Arundel, who made such

SCHOOL BOARD HELD MEETING

Discussed Rules and the Petition of Pawtucketville Residents Without Action

The members of the school board met as a committee on rules last night with the exception of Mr. Bailey who was away on business and Mr. McKeen who is confined to his home with a severe illness. The committee discussed the new rules of order and their delay in action in order to give Superintendent Stoddy an opportunity to get acquainted with the said rules.

Later in the evening Mr. Rogers presented the following petition relative to the Pawtucketville school transfer matter:

Lowell, Sept. 17, 1912.

To the Lowell School Committee: I hereby make formal request that a public hearing be granted by the Lowell school committee to one person whose child, having in previous years been an attendant of the Pawtucketville grammar school, has been recently notified by the school committee to transfer to the Lowell school.

(Signed) John J. Rogers.

The matter was discussed in an informal way, but inasmuch as this was not a regular meeting of the board no action was taken. Chairman Harrington stated to a reporter of The Sun that he would confer with the other members of the board and as soon as convenient a meeting would be called at which time the matter will be acted upon. It was 11 o'clock before the meeting closed.

SLASHED BY STRANGER

Calabrese Attacked by an Unknown Man

MILFORD, Sept. 18.—No reason can be assigned by Joseph Calabrese for the act of a strange man who slashed his face last evening as he was returning to his boarding house from work. Calabrese is at the Milford hospital suffering from a gash which starts at the bridge of his nose and extends down the left cheek, across the jaw to the neck. He is not seriously injured, however.

According to his story, Calabrese was approached on the railroad track by the stranger, whom he saw within 100 yards of his boarding house, and asked to read what was on a piece of paper. As the paper was apparently blank, Calabrese reached for it and the other man drew a razor and cut him.

Men returning from work at the Norcross quarry went to his assistance and he was taken to the hospital. It is thought the assailant is insane, as he was never seen before by any of the men.

CLERKS AND CARRIERS

Next Examination Will be Held at the Lowell Postoffice on Saturday, November 2.

The next examination for clerks and carriers in the local postoffice will take place on Nov. 2, 1912.

Applicants must have reached their 18th birthday, but not their 21st birthday, on date of the examination. They must be citizens of the United States, and those of the male sex are required to be at least 5'4", 4 in. tall without shoes and not less than 125 pounds in weight in ordinary clothing.

Full particulars in regard to this examination, with specimen questions, are furnished with each application blank and can be obtained from Gen. H. Gurney, local secretary, at the post office or Edward E. Scobbin, secretary first civil service district, Boston, Mass. Application must be filed with the latter not later than Oct. 1, 1912.

On Sunday, September 29, at 10:20 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. the 20th anniversary of the pastorate of Rev. George E. Kennett will be celebrated with religious service in the First Trinitarian Congregational church, on Dutton street. A public reception will be held on Thursday, October 1st, from 7:30 to 10 p. m.

EX-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Says That Woman Suffrage is Coming

WINSTON, Ariz., Sept. 18.—On his way to New Mexico, where he is to make his appeal for the progressive party before turning north to Colorado, Col. Roosevelt passed through eastern Arizona today. He was scheduled to make speeches in Albuquerque, Las Vegas and Santa Fe before leaving the state.

One thing which Arizona needed, Col. Roosevelt said, was equal suffrage.

"Woman suffrage is coming and that within a few years in the eastern states," he said. "I don't want to see Arizona fall behind in this regard after setting the pace in other ways."

Col. Roosevelt's physician told him that he must be more careful in the use of his voice. Conversation while the train was in motion was barred, but Col. Roosevelt said he could not keep still all the time and the doctor found it necessary to keep a close watch on his patient to make him obey the rules. The strain of the long campaign has told on Col. Roosevelt, and his voice is slightly husky, although he said that he felt "billy" with some of the hardest fighting of the campaign ahead.

Col. Roosevelt's tour from Denver was settled upon today. He is to leave tomorrow night and go into Nebraska speaking in Hastings, Lincoln and Omaha on Friday. Then he will enter Kansas and will remain over Sunday in Topeka. After a couple of days in Oklahoma and Arkansas his route leads to Memphis, New Orleans, Montgomery, Birmingham and Atlanta and then north to North Carolina.

FORMER HEALTH AGENT

Wants His Place in Lawrence Dept.

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—Alleging bad faith on the part of Mayor Scanlon and the aldermen of Lawrence, George W. Smith, a civil war veteran and a former agent of the board of health of Lawrence, has filed a petition for a writ of mandamus in the supreme judicial court, seeking reinstatement. Justice Sheldon has issued an order of justice returnable on Tuesday.

Smith was appointed as agent of the board of health of Lawrence on Feb. 26, 1897, and held that position until Jan. 12, 1912, when, after notice and a hearing, he was removed by the mayor and aldermen. The office held by Smith was abolished on the ground of economy and its duties were transferred to a director of the department of public health.

Smith alleges bad faith and declares that on Jan. 23 last Mayor Scanlon and the aldermen created a new office known as the superintendent of sanitation and have appointed a man to fill that office.

Smith further claims that he could only have been removed locally by the board of health and that the action of the mayor and aldermen is void.

Agent for Newmarket Manufacturing Co., Comes Here to Get Skilled Help

A reporter for The Sun came very near capturing a good job this morning when he met a man from Newmarket, N. H., who is in this city in an endeavor to hire people for the Newmarket Mfg. Co. of Newmarket, N. H.

According to his statement 20 men and women are to leave this afternoon for the New Hampshire town, where the prospects seem far better than in the Spindle City.

The agent for the above company is Mr. Lewis R. Levesque and this morning he established his headquarters in a local drug store. Shortly after 10 o'clock the writer called on him and asked if it was so that he was hiring people for a New Hampshire concern to which he resided in the affirmative.

"Have you a job for me?" queried the writer.

"Well, what can you do in a cotton mill?"

"To tell you the truth I can't do much, but I am willing to learn."

"I don't doubt your word, but we are not looking for learners, what we want is experienced help and only in two departments, weavers and card room employes. Our place is not a gold mine, but I believe one can do better than in Lowell. I represent the Newmarket Mfg. Co., a cotton plant with 16,000 spindles and we pay very good wages."

"The population of our town is about 3300, all good respectable people and we have good railroad facilities, although the electric cars have not as yet been installed. The wages are higher than in Lowell and the board is much cheaper, for one can eat good and be well roomed for between $3 and $4 per week."

"We pay all transportation expenses and it is safe for me to say that whoever will come to Newmarket will never regret it. I will leave late this afternoon with 20 people from this city, men and women, and shall return in a few days at which time I hope to take along with me as many more."

The reporter then informed the agent that he would secure employment in a local mill as an apprentice weaver and as soon as he is able to run a few looms he would call on him at Newmarket, to which Mr. Levesque replied: "You will be welcome at any time providing you can run a loom or a card."

FIVE HUNDRED SHOTS FIRED

Pitched Battle Between Union and Non-Union Men at Lafayette, Colorado

LAFAYETTE, Colo., Sept. 18.—Five hundred shots were fired last night in a pitched battle between non-union coal miners employed at the Simpson mine and a body of supposed union men who attacked the stockade in which the former were holding a dance. One of the non-union men was shot three times and probably fatally wounded.

If any of the attacking party were killed or wounded they were carried from the field by their comrades.

Three times the attacking party charged the stockade, firing at the men within and each time the fire was returned vigorously. Finally the assailants withdrew. The strike has been on the northern Colorado coal fields for more than two years.

MINISTER WAS BADLY BEATEN

Riotous Scenes Were Resumed Today at Sitting of the Hungarian Parliament

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Sept. 18.—step toward his adversary and asked: "What did you say?" Immediately the riotous scenes which occurred at the opening of the Hungarian parliament yesterday were witnessed again this morning when the sitting of the chamber of deputies was resumed. The opposition members concentrated their attack on Herr Beothy, the minister of the interior, who was struck on the face several times and whose friends did not succeed in rescuing him until he had fallen to the floor. Even before the beginning of the sitting the greatest excitement prevailed. The opposition deputies appeared in the chamber in full force and as soon as the government deputies began to arrive in the upper hall, the new arrivals being halted with a storm of there was no fire but that smoke was abuse. An opposition member shouted the word "Secunder!" at Minister Beothy. The latter thereupon made a alarm.

A portion of the fire apparatus at the central fire station in Palmer street was called to the Independent Packing house, Count Tisza, took the chair the tumult, which broke out yesterday and which was continuous throughout the sitting, was resumed.

When the president of the lower chamber in full force and as soon as the government deputies began to arrive in the upper hall, the new arrivals being halted with a storm of there was no fire but that smoke was abuse. ARE you good at balancing? Could you carry a basket of freshly washed clothes on your head for half a mile without dropping and soiling them? If your life depended upon balancing a basin of water in this manner for an hour what would your chances of living be? How would you like to carry a heavy basketful of tea or coffee thus over a steep mountain path with another and larger bundle strapped to your back? Would the matter of a husband in an easy chair on your back discommode you?

Such feats are part of the every day life of people in many parts of the world, not only among savage tribes, but in communities of high civilization. In the South one often sees the washer woman walking unconcernedly down the street, a bundle of clothes poised gracefully on her head. In restaurants waiters, eager to display their ability along this line, are often seen balancing trays, marvelously laden, without coming to disaster. A trunk of monstrous proportions is, upon occasion seen wondrously borne upon the back of a not over husky porter. So is the burden bearer not occasionally in evidence in America A. D. 1912.

Carrying water on the head, the usual method among primitive people, requires the bottom of the jar to be either round and accompanied with a sustaining pad for the head and for the ground or to be concave on the bottom. These jars are often decorated with pictures which are usually symbolical or pictorial. It is surprising to note how extensively this primitive method of water supply is used. We do not need to go out of our own country to find such conditions. Among the Indian tribes of New Mexico, Arizona, Oklahoma and Texas it is still in daily use, and the people live on much the same plane of civilization as in the old days before the era of the white man. In Central and South America, Australia, Africa, Alaska and many parts of Asia (toting is surprisingly popular. A packing device popular among savages the world around is very similar to the hod used by bricklayers in this country. The containing portion of this carrier is a basket attached to a pole which rests upon the shoulder and is grasped by the hands. These baskets are piled high and heavy loads may be thus carried. This style of hod has a wide variety of uses and may serve for marketing, gathering wood, carrying grains or for ordinary "junk."

But the back and not the neck or shoulder bears the heaviest of the burdens. Loads of almost incredible magnitude and weight are borne on the back suspended by ropes or leather bands passing either about the forehead, about the shoulders or both. Mexican water peddlers carry on their backs enormous jars which derive their shape, not from the imitation of a natural object, but from the use to which they are put. They are long, fit the back somewhat and are carried by means of a band across the forehead to enable the bearer to empty the liquid by bending his back. The water peddlers may be seen in the streets of the little Mexican villages at any time and their coming is always hailed with rejoicing. Throughout Europe market women sell their wares from baskets attached to their backs in a similar manner. Burdens which to the American woman would seem unbearable are borne by these market women with comparative ease.

The German carrying basket is a model of convenience. It exists in many materials, sizes and degrees of finish, and it varies somewhat in form according to special functions. But all of them are practically knapsacks. The side of the basket next to the carrier's back is somewhat flat. The straps for the shoulders are attached near the top of the apparatus, and they each have a loop or eyelet at the bottom to fit over the ends of the frame sticks which project downward below the basket to relieve them.

These loops and projections are of the greatest possible convenience, for the carrier does not have to rise painfully with her load. She sets it upon any accessible rock or table, turns her back to it, brings the straps over her shoulders and buttons the eyelets over the projections at the bottom of the basket. She has nothing more to do than to bend her back, adjust herself to the load and walk off. This same style of basket carrying prevails throughout Asia, Africa, South America and the South Sea Islands.

Among the tea fields of Assam hundreds of girls may be seen picking the leaves from the bushes and throwing them into large baskets borne on their backs. These baskets, though wide and deep, are piled full before being emptied, nor is any pity taken on the girl slave who stumbles beneath the weight of her pack.

If a girl were to walk through the streets of any American city or village carrying vegetables by means of a yoke she would be hailed with derision and regarded as one of the seven wonders of the world. But in Europe this is one of the most popular of carrying devices.

The English carrying yoke is a type of harness widely dispersed in northern Europe and among the colonists from that section. It consists of a horizontal piece or the yoke itself and the slings. The yoke is wider than it is thick, is rounded on all corners for ease to the carrier, and tapers toward the ends to reduce weight. It also serves another purpose in common with all other carrying poles. It holds the loads away from the body. Whoever has tried to carry two pails of water with his hands alone, knows the convenience of this. It is a common thing in the country to see the boys and women using a hoghead hoop as a spreader. In the cities two men carry an enormous block by both holding to the hooks and one pushing against the shoulders of the other for a brace.

There are many styles of these yokes and they are used in some form in most parts of the world. Candle sellers in Mexico carry their wares on long horizontal boards similar to the European yoke. The Japanese also use a modified form of it for carrying tea and rice. In Holland and Normandy the yoke is used extensively by milkmaids.

When we were children we considered it fun to be carried in a seat made by the joining of the hands of two of our playmates. Why we were partial to this mode of traveling is hard to understand, for it was surely slow, rough and rather uncertain, since there was always danger of being allowed to drop with a thump to the ground.

The Chinese employ a method of carrying passengers which is but an expansion of this old-fashioned method of our childhood days. They place the person to be carried in a covered chair, called a sedan chair, and carry him by means of two long poles to which the chair is attached. There are usually four people employed in the carrying of one of these chairs.

This type of chair is used throughout all the Oriental countries. In Japan it is converted into a light carriage which is drawn by a servant. This is a much more pleasant task for the burden bearer, as the vehicles are light and provided with wheels which bear the weight.

Savage women not only carry burdens for their husbands, but in some countries even go so far as to carry the husbands themselves. The Babines, a subtribe in British Columbia, have a frame for the back, a rough armchair without legs, made of stout split sticks of willow joined by thongs. The women attach this frame to their backs and have been seen carrying their husbands within them in cases where the lord and master could claim a slight ill to justify himself in such a procedure.

But there is one burden which falls to the lot of the women in all races—the carrying of the children. Every mother is at some time obliged to carry the little one about on her person, and it is interesting to note the various methods used in different countries for this purpose.

American and European babies are carried on the chest and circled by the arms. If the child is very young it simply lies within the bed thus formed, but if older it sits up and puts its arm around its mother's neck. Of course this method deprives the mother of the use of the hands and would therefore not be considered good by those who carry their young about with them while at their work.

Strangely, it seems to be the custom throughout all savage countries to attach the child to the person of the mother in some manner and to let it remain there throughout the day's work. Women banana peddlers in South America may be seen on the streets with a basket or pan of bananas balanced on their heads and a child lying within the folds of the sash at their backs. So the child rests all through the day and is not removed from this position until the mother returns home in the evening.

The Semite mother carries her child astride her shoulder, shifting it as occasion demands. No device or invention is used, but the child clings to her from instinct and so is held in position. The Australians of Carpentaria Gulf carry their babes under the arm in a trough of bark with a string under the center and over the shoulder, the arm pressing it on the outer side to keep it close.

The New Guinea baby is carried in a net suspended to the mother's neck and dangling low down in front of her. This is an unpopular way of carrying a child, however, both for mother and for babe. It is irritating for the mother to feel the babe bouncing against her as she walks and is most uncomfortable for the babe.

Everybody has seen pictures of the Indian papoose and laughed at the queer little figure strapped to its mother's back in its unique bed. But this is one of the safest methods of carrying a young child and is therefore to be commended. It may at any time be unstrapped from the mother's back and hung upon the limb of a nearby tree in plain sight of the mother as she works. When she wishes to return home she simply straps the papoose about her and walks off. In this way her hands and arms are left free for other things and she is able to carry a load in her arms as well as on her back.

The person who bears burdens upon his head, back or shoulders usually bears the stamp of his occupation in his carriage. Those who are trained from youth in head balancing acquire a straightness of figure and elegance of carriage that arouses admiration wherever seen.

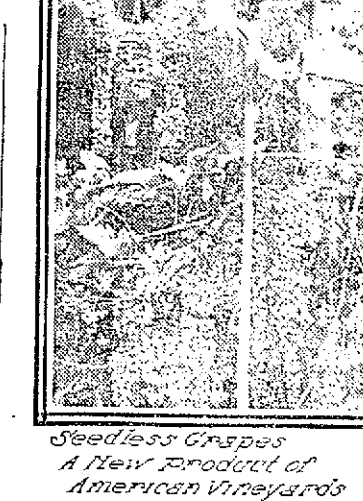

But bearing burdens on the back, neck or shoulders is, on the contrary, very injurious to both health and beauty. In bearing a heavy load one unconsciously leans forward in such a position as to cramp the lungs, distort the shoulders and back and cramp the neck. This soon reacts upon the personal appearance of the burden bearer and converts him into an object that is anything but beautiful.

GRAPE GROWING IN THE AMERICAN VINEYARDS

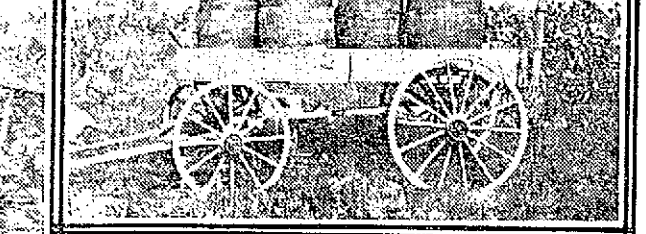

OF all the activities incident to the autumn season in our work-a-day America there is none more picturesque than the harvesting of the grape. The long, even rows of vines; the leaves just tinged with the color that comes with the frost; the countless baskets heaping with grapes, resplendent in purple or that sunny yellow which keeps the blue haze of the afternoon; the year; the grape pickers of both sexes and all ages clanging and whistling merrily as they pass up and down the aisles of the vineyards and a heavy-laden cart or wagon to carry luscious burdens to steamer dock or railroad station, or, maybe, the nearby wine press—all combine to give life and color to a picture that is an admirable blending of industry and amusement and content.

For all that we are wont, most of us to speak of this and that section of the grape-growing regions of the United States it is really surprising that a large proportion of the whole country is adapted to grape cultivation. There are three main viticultural regions which are distinguished by the grape species grown in them, shapes the most important and certainly the most extensive of these grape belts is what is known as the American native-grape region. Strictly speaking, this region comprises all that portion of the United States which lies east of the Rocky Mountains, but the industry is most extensive in the States west of the Hudson river north of the Ohio river—that is, a States that border on the Great Lakes—and in the more centrally located States of the Mississippi Valley. In this region that there are produced great quantities of such favor-varieties as the Catawba, Concord, Delaware, Niagara and no less than twenty others.

The second of the American grape-growing districts comprises the Muscadine region of the South Atlantic and of States embracing practically the entire region along the coast from the Tampa river to Florida, reaching up into the Blue Ridge Mountains and along the Gulf Coast to the Grande river. In this region, in fact, the grape vines being trained fence-like supports as is common in the great northern region first mentioned, there is employed almost exclusively the overhead arbor—a form of trellis, by the way, which is also used in Spain in growing those grapes which come to us in casks packed with cork dust and labeled "Malaga" grapes.

The third of Miss Columbia's trio of grape-growing domains is that located west of the Rocky Mountains and so largely in the State of California that most persons refer to all varieties which emanate from this district as California grapes. In California vines trained on trellises are comparatively rare. The west coast method, in sharp contrast to that employed east of the Rockies, is to use only stakes for the support of the vines. This plan has one advantage in that it allows the vineyard to be cultivated crosswise as well as lengthwise. The California grape industry is important if for no other reason than its connection with the California raisin industry, which has gradually assumed rank as one of the chief sources of wealth in the Golden Gate State.

That America is especially adapted for grape cultivation would seem to be proven by the circumstance that no country in the world is possessed of a greater number of native species of the grape. The fact that no other fruit-bearing plant adapts itself so readily to new environment and adjusts itself to so many different conditions is a strong point in its favor under all circumstances and causes grape culture to appeal alike to the amateur who is just beginning to seek a livelihood from the soil and to the established farmer who seeks a "side line" that will require only limited time and attention. Indeed, grapes are often grown on soils too poor for other purposes. Finally, the fact that no other fruit is used for such a variety of purposes tends to make grapes a satisfactory household producer.

The American grape growers may well claim to be engaged in an ancient and honorable pursuit. History records that the cultivation of the vine was the highest achievement of ancient husbandry, the vine and the olive being, in antiquity, the marks and almost the symbols of settled and cultured life. Whereas we have in the United States some vineyards made up of bushes only two or three feet high the vine is, by nature, a great rambler and single specimens have reached to the top of the tallest trees or overspread great areas.

Not only is the grape the poor man's fruit by reason of the fact that the prevailing market price is usually low and that a crop may be raised in spaces of small dimensions, but the long life of the average grape vine is another point in its favor on the score of economy. There are vineyards in Europe that have held good for three or four centuries, whereas experts assert that some of our native vines are doubtless of much greater age, these investigators having failed to find in a single vine that had died of old age. America also leads the world in the size of grape vines. One in California that is accounted the "champion" has a trunk 7 feet and 8 inches in circumference. Its spreading branches cover nearly half an acre and this one vine has borne from eight to ten tons of grapes a year. However, just to show that California has no monopoly of big grape vines it may be cited that there has been reported from Alabama a vine measuring six feet one inch in circumference at its base.

Oddly enough, the early attempts to establish grape growing in the eastern part of the United States were generally unsuccessful, the pioneers in the industry having made the mistake of attempting to introduce European varieties. It was not until they turned attention to our native grapes that the industry was placed on a firm footing and latterly the status of the vineyards as wealth producers has been greatly improved by the crops that have been taken to combat injurious insects and vine diseases. Moreover, not only has America by improving and cultivating her native grapes given to the world a virtually new fruit, but it is this self-same sturdy American stock that has lately been instrumental in re-establishing or rehabilitating many European vineyards that had been all but destroyed by the ravages of root-louse.

The commercial grape industry of the United States is only little more than half a century old. Now there are upwards of three million grape vines in bearing in a dozen States and California alone has more than a quarter of a million acres devoted to grape culture. But bright as is the future of the California wine industry—in the Golden Gate State they can produce five times as much wine to the acre as in Europe—it is a question whether there is not fully as promising a future for the vineyard industry in the States east of the Mississippi.

Throughout the whole "grape belt" of the Great Lakes region, where most of the accompanying illustrations were made, the Concord grape is the variety most largely cultivated. It has been roughly estimated that the Concord occupies eight-tenths of all the bearing vineyards and that nine-tenths of the new grape vines set out are of that variety. The explanation is found in the fact that the demand for the Concord is so strong and so steady that it is always easy to sell these grapes in full carload lots, whereas other varieties can usually be disposed of only in mixed cars.

Inasmuch as grapes will grow almost anywhere in the lake region and there are practically immune from frosts, there was little attention paid, in the planting of the early vineyards, to the question of soil, but in the present day of more scientific grape culture much attention is devoted to this subject. Much more attention than was formerly given to cultivation than was formerly the case and special forms of cultivators and other implements have been devised for use in the vineyards. It has been said that there is almost no limit to the amount of care which it is possible to bestow on a vineyard whereas the neglected vineyard is never profitable for long.

For all that it should be explained that the harvest is the only time during the year when a large force is necessary in the vineyard. In the matter of cultivation one man with a team can take care of from twenty to forty acres. The pruning is done during the winter and by the same force that is required to drive the teams in summer. A large force is needed in every vineyard at picking time, but girls and women are preferred for this work, and thus it comes about that all the members of the average family in the grape region can find lucrative, healthy, pleasant employment and at the same time the expense of picking is kept down for the grower.

BETTER STOP SHOOTING AMERICANS

Mexico had better not shoot any Americans as spies or for any other cause. A young man from New York, who joined the Mexican army, has been sentenced to be shot as a spy. The state department at Washington has sent an order to the Mexican government to prevent the execution. The execution decree has doubtless been countermanded, and the matter is likely to be made the subject of pointed negotiations between the two governments. If Mexico keeps on at the internecine warfare in which she has been so long engaged, and if she continues to show such recklessness in regard to the rights of Americans, she may find herself eventually in conflict with the United States forces.

Mexico will have to answer for stray bullets crossing the border into the United States territory. If the Mexicans elect to keep on shooting one another they will have to keep the melee on their own side of the fence.

The record of Taft and Roosevelt is attacked and the performance rather than the platforms of the parties is taken as the criterion by which to be guided. Here is a plain statement from the article in reference to the labor record of the republican party:

"From the republican party, as a party, so long as it has had entire control of the legislation and the administration it was impossible to get any consideration, much less action, on any fundamental question affecting the rights, interests of and the justice due to the toilers of our country, as evidenced by the deaf ear turned toward the toilers by congress when the bill of grievances and protest was presented to the president of the United States, Mr. Roosevelt, and the president pro tem, of the senate, Mr. Frye and the speaker of the house of representatives, Mr. Cannon.

WILL THE OPPORTUNITY BE LOST?

The fight precipitated in New York by certain democrats opposed to Dix and Murphy may have disastrous results in November. With a split ticket on one side and a united democracy on the other there should be no difficulty in electing Wilson despite the fact that some states in the west seem to take kindly to the Bull Moose. It all depends upon whether the democratic party knows how to take advantage of its opportunity or whether it will bungle things and give the victory to the opposition.

Governor Wilson is becoming stronger every day; his position on the issues of the campaign is impregnable and if the people of this country want to overthrow the trusts and monopolies; if they want to establish the rule of the people, they must support the democratic ticket.

ROOSEVELT AND HEARST

Of late there appears to be a striking affinity between Mr. Hearst and Col. Roosevelt. Indeed this feeling is so strong that it is quite discernible, although one is in the far east and the other in the far west. They both agree that Wilson is "academic, pedagogical and ignorant of governmental affairs." They agree that the democratic policy on the tariff would injure "the interests," and so they decide that Wilson should be defeated, and that the greatest epoch of the age should be elected. Hearst fought for Clark's nomination and having been beaten in that, as usual, he seeks to defeat the nominee of the democratic party.

TO EXTEND HOME RULE.

Winston Churchill's plan for provincial home rule throughout the British Isles is one that will eventually be carried out in all probability in proportion to population. If the United States has over forty state legislatures, ten or twelve, as Churchill proposes, would not be excessive for the British empire. Ireland will be first to get its separate parliament unless present arrangements are defeated, which is not probable. The English people will finally after a long squabble settle down to a new form of government which will have the best features of the republic without its weak points.

VENGEANCE OF WOMEN

When women wreak vengeance on one of their own sex there must be a cause. Out at Norwalk, Ct., the other day a number of women got hold of a nineteen-year old girl and bringing her to a quiet place stripped her naked and gave her a coat of tar. We cannot imagine what the cause could have been except that the girl was deceiving her sex or else luring some married man away from his wife. The girl has left the town for her own good and that of the village as well and no doubt she feels that after all the women were not without mercy since they did not set a match to the tar.

WILSON'S DISCRETION

Governor Wilson has shown great moral courage in leading off the bosses and the interests from the first announcement of his candidacy to the present hour. His counsel with Col. Harvey and Editor Waterson in telling them that he thought their support would injure him was such as few candidates would show, while his attitude to the Tammany leaders whom he unexpectedly met at Syracuse was equally discreet and cautious. In fact it cannot be said of Wilson that he is lining up with any wrong element. He is determined to win honorably or not at all.

WATER LESS THAN COST

The city of Cambridge is face to face with a controversy over water rates. It is charged that the existing scale of rates is inequitable in that large concerns get the water at less than cost, thus causing the small home and shop owners to pay more than they have any right to pay. Every city makes a liberal reduction to manufacturing concerns that use large quantities of water, but we know of no city except Cambridge that can afford to sell water at less than cost.

GENERAL COXEY AGAIN

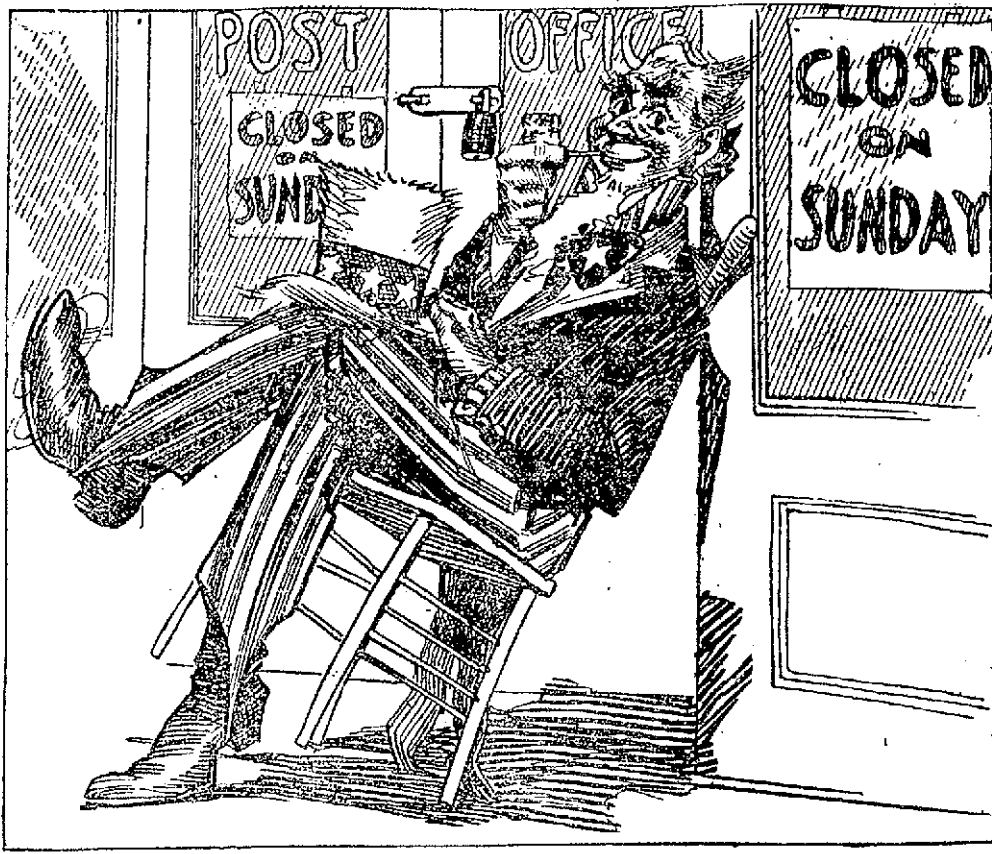

General Coxeey wants to do something. He would like to head another industrial army as he did in 1894, but he should remember that the times have changed, that business is good and there is work for every man who will not run away from it. There is now no panic, and although the prices of all commodities are high while work is plenty nobody is likely to suffer from want.

FEDERATION OF LABOR FOR WILSON

The official organ of the American Federation of Labor is out with a three-page article condemning both wings of the republican party and praising the democratic party. This is regarded as an endorsement of the democratic ticket and an appeal to the toilers to rally to its support.

John D. Rockefeller has had constructed secret tunnels under his house, well secured by iron gratings and steel doors with combination locks. John has improved upon the cyclone cellars and these underground retreats are intended as a place of safety in case there should be a sudden outbreak of the Black Handers or a social revolution headed by the anarchists or the I. W. W. The fact that even Rockefeller considers such a mode of escape necessary is a rather unfavorable commentary upon the efficacy of the forces of law and order.

Those who look into Page street will conclude that now it is reasonably certain that we shall have a comfort station in the vicinity of Merrimack square in the near future. When completed it will fill a long felt want.

A DAY OF REST

Seen and Heard

"Girls with pink tinted teeth have a loving disposition and will make good wives," declared Dr. Jacob S. Wells, of Fargo, N. D., a delegate to the National Dentists' convention at Washington. "Young men would do well if they would have their sweethearts' teeth examined before marrying them. Girls who have dull, chalky teeth are not prone to love and will not as a general thing make good wives."

"Girls of a fely inclination have the pink tint just below the gums. It can be readily seen if one will look closely. The color is in the enamel and not, as some dentists state, an overhanging of the gums."

"It would seem that the best course for a young man to pursue when he has doubts about the sincerity of his sweetheart is to have a dentist examine her teeth. I know one who did this. He found that this sweetheart had chalky teeth and that she loved him for his money. These are scientific facts. The disposition of a person can also be determined by the formation of his teeth. If you see a person with square, white, clear teeth the chances are he or she will have a strong character and will come to distinction in the world."

TYPES

When a gentleman comes smiling to my office for a chat. Greets me jovially, almost gleefully. And removes his smoking hat. Lids the tails of his pants. Shuts and proceeds to take a seat. I'm not fooled by the deception. Though his manner is impressive. And quite dignified he looks. I know well the game he's working. He has called to get me books.

When a red-faced rotund stranger calls me Master and appears. As delighted with our meeting. As if we were friends for years. And he mentions folks who know me in a most familiar way. And believes he met my brother. On his travels yesterday. That's enough. I know the answer. Off it's posted my endurance. He smokes and belittles stranger. Wants to sell me life insurance.

When a man much like a banker, who has been in the city. Passes me a card of linen. And expensively engraved. Then proceeds to talk of money. In a free and easy style. Mentions tens of thousands lightly. And displays a gentle smile. I just yawn, and say I'm busy. Then look sadly at the clock. For I know the game he's playing. And I don't buy mining stock.

50 CASES OF SCARLET FEVER

Thirty Are Reported to be on One Milkman's Route—Board of Health Takes Action

The members of the board of health held their regular meeting at 4.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and discussed at length several petitions for the location of stables in various sections of the city. Another matter which was brought before the board was the fact that there had been about 50 cases of scarlet fever reported in the city and of that number, it is said 30 were on one milkman's route.

The first matter to be taken up was the petition of John Vlahos who asked permission to erect an addition to his barn at 205 School street. On this the board voted to defer action until the members had taken a view of the premises.

Inspector Connors reported that, in company with officer Timothy Dwyer, he had found a horse on the premises of John B. Cheney in Floyd street, where permission has been asked to build a barn. The find was made at 10.30 p. m. Monday, Sept. 16, and Dr. Carroll reported considerable data on the matter of the proposed barn. It was decided to turn the evidence over to the city solicitor to take whatever action he deemed advisable.

John J. Broadbent and others who opposed the granting of permission to John P. Quinn to build a stable for the use of 25 horses in Moore street near the corner of Germania street, were given a hearing. Mr. Broadbent was represented by Lawyer John J. Hogan, who informed the board that his client owned property adjoining that on which Mr. Quinn intended erecting the barn and he said he was opposed to such action because it would not only prove a menace to the people of the vicinity, but it would also have a tendency to lower the value of his property. Another remonstrant was Michael Froderick who owns a two-tenement block and considerable land directly opposite the site where Mr. Quinn intends to locate the stable, and he said he did not want the stable located there as it would seriously affect his property. Mr. Quinn informed the board that he intended selling the land occupied by his stable in Dix street, and that he needed some place to care for his horses. He and Mr. Broadbent got into a red hot argument over the price paid by the latter for the property which he owned in Moore street, and finally Mr. Quinn offered to purchase his property. This sort of talk was cut short, however, by the chairman and it is said that on the way out of the building the two parties came to some agreement on a price whereby Mr. Quinn will become the owner of the property which is now held by Mr. Broadbent. The board voted to take the matter under advisement.

The board voted to take the matter under advisement.

On the petition of John W. McEvoy, who objects to the use of a suction fan which he alleges throws off an offensive odor from the basement of Page's store, the board voted to inspect the premises.

Agust Bates reported that since August 1, there had been 50 cases of scarlet fever reported in the city. 30 of which it is said were on one milkman's route. The department will try and locate the cause, and also take every precaution to prevent the spread of the disease.

BURGLAR GOT 10 YEARS

Already Spent 15 Years in Western Prisons

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—In the Norfolk superior criminal court at Dedham yesterday James Sullivan, who has three aliases, received a sentence of from eight to ten years at the state prison on a conviction for breaking and entering the dwelling of David Sweeney, a member of the state board of education, at Brookline, on May 21, last. On another conviction for breaking and entering the dwelling of David J. Anderson at Brookline on the same night, there was no sentence.

Sullivan has a long record, having served over 15 years in state prisons in the west, or nearly all the time since he was 19 years old.

He was sent to Joliet under the name of Henry Marger, from Chicago, for burglary, on a sentence of five years. In 1902 he was in the toils again on a charge of burglary and was sentenced to six years in the Joliet prison. He escaped from the prison but was soon recaptured and was released after serving six years and three months. He served this sentence under the name of Thomas G. Downs.

Gall Stones Removed Without an Operation

After suffering for one year with gall stones, I was told by a friend to try Swamp-Root. I began with the fifty cent size and after using four bottles found that I was much better. Then I began using the larger size bottles and after taking three bottles I was cured. That was seven years ago this summer and I have never been sick since that time from this disease. I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root to any one for kidney and bladder troubles hoping it may do as much good for many people as it did for me.

Yours truly,
MISS EMMA HOLDEFER,
20 North Thorpe St., Kansas City, Kan.
State of Missouri
County of Jackson

On the 11th day of August, 1909, personally appeared before me, a Notary Public in and for said County and State, Miss Emma Holderfer, who subscribed the within statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

GOV. WILSON IS COMING

He Will Visit This State on Sept. 26

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—Gov. Wilson will be the guest of the Massachusetts democrats on the 24th and 27th of this month.

A special committee has been designated by Chairman Riley of the state committee to meet Gov. Wilson when he enters the state and to act as escort to him until he leaves.

The committee, under the chairmanship of National Committeeman John W. Coughlin of Fall River, will consist of the members at large of the state committee, who are as follows: James W. Synan, Pittsfield; James W. O'Brien, Northampton; David F. O'Connell, Worcester; Thomas L. Walsh, Clinton; John P. Mahoney, Lawrence; Frank C. Richardson, Essex; Walter H. Creamer, Lynn; Michael A. O'Leary, Cambridge; Joseph A. Maynard, Boston; Charles F. Riordan, Boston; John P. McDonald, Boston; Albin C. Drinkwater, Braintree; Dr. Timothy J. Sullivan, Fall River; Harvey H. Pratt, Scituate; Leon R. Evans, Brookline; Alexis Boyer, Southbridge.

They will meet Gov. Wilson in Springfield and escort him in automobiles to the place of rally, where he will make a noon address. Mayor LaPrade of Springfield will preside. After his speech in Springfield the governor will proceed to the Barns Agricultural Fair, where he will be the personal guest of Col. William A. Gaston, who will have charge of the governor and his escort until he leaves the fair.

Gov. Wilson will deliver a set speech at the fair. From the fair the governor and his escort will proceed to New Bedford, where he will address a rally at the rink. Mayor Ashley will preside at this rally.

After the New Bedford rally the governor will go by automobile to Boston where he will remain over night.

On the 27th at noon Gov. Wilson will address a rally at Faneuil Hall. Arrangements will be made for overnight accommodations at this time. Mayor John F. Fitzkerald will preside.

WOMEN AS CONDUCTORS

Tried Out on the Cars in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18.—The Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company is experimenting with women conductors on its new pay-as-you-enter cars. Yesterday two of the cashiers, or ticket sellers from the Market street elevated line were detailed to act as conductors on the new cars the company is installing in this city. While none of the officials of the corporation would say what the experiment showed, the superintendent of the Twelfth and Sixteenth streets division, where the women were tried, is reported to have been pleased at the showing made.

On the new cars the conductor is merely a cashier. He sits in a cage-like enclosure, receives fares, makes change and then receives his receipts. Electric switches have relieved him of the necessity of riding the motorman, and there is no adjusting of trolley poles, because of the new devices with which the cars are equipped. The company really does not need men to do this work if women are capable, and, with more experience, it is reasonable to believe their selection is only a question of time.

The Trip to California Under Special Care

"You feel like sitting out and tying together the memories of this trip and keeping them separate from all other trips." A woman recently said this after a pleasant experience on a Burlington Route "Personally Conducted" excursion party to California. She traveled alone, but met many agreeable people on the car, which was in charge of a special conductor. This good natured official was a well-informed, courteous man who went all the way through with the party, looking after everyone's comfort and attending to all the little details of the trip. Thus a woman or a child in one of these parties can travel with perfect safety and freedom from care. If you would like more information about the Burlington's comfortable and inexpensive personally conducted excursions, please write me a postal and I will send you maps, literature, etc., by return mail. 800 TURKS AND ARABS KILLED

MAYOR O'DONNELL'S ADDRESS MOST SANGUINARY BATTLE OF THE

On Progress Under New Charter Before Convention of Municipalities at Buffalo, N. Y.

In an address, today, before the convention of American Municipalities at Buffalo, N. Y., Mayor James E. O'Donnell said that Lowell was making good progress under a commission form of government. Mayor O'Donnell's address had to do with reform in municipal government under the commission charter, and after thanking the officials of the convention for the honor done him in according him a place on the program of speakers, he went quite exhaustively into the subject assigned him. He said that even in the short time in which the commission form of government has been in vogue in Lowell all prejudice has been removed and that the consensus of opinion in this city today is, that the commission form of government is a business proposition is a good thing and he said that the short ballot was the accompanying political panacea. After a full explanation of the old form of government and its modes of operation, Mayor O'Donnell spoke, in part, as follows:

In considering the commission form of government as operating in Lowell, it might be well first to speak of the elimination of party designation and the diminution of the number of officials which combine to rid the city of the political machine candidate and therefore of the political machine itself. Lowell is making good progress under a commission form of government. The ward lines still remain, but they are not considered in local elections. And this non-partisan spirit of the voter on election day is carried into the council chamber by the members of the municipal council and exercised in the subsequent election of heads of departments, ability now being the main qualification of the candidate. While perhaps with only one election under the new idea, it may seem presumptuous for me to speak of the class of men available under the new regime as compared with the old, I think I may argue that with party designation abolished, the longer term of office, and the fact that the members of the municipal council are given a salary of substantial proportions at least, there are men at present in office who would not have been candidates under the old conditions, and

FINED $50 FOR CARRYING REVOLVER

Man Who Came From Bangor, Me., Was Arrested in Middlesex St. Last Night

Charles H. Harding, who claims was that he had had some trouble with Bangor, Me., as his home, was arrested in Middlesex street last night by Patrolman John H. Clark while trying to dispose of a revolver and was sent to the police station where he was charged with carrying a pistol without any authority.

Harding was trying to dispose of the revolver when approached by Patrolman Clark and the only reason he could give for carrying the weapon was that he had had some trouble with a man in Nashua, N. H., and was afraid of the man.

The weapon was a six-shooter, every chamber was loaded and from the appearance the pistol had never been fired.

Harding was arraigned before Judge Burleigh in police court this morning and after the arresting officer had testified, the minimum fine of $50 was imposed and the weapon was confiscated.

SWALLOWED BREASTPIN CONTRACTS PRESENTED

It Was Removed From Girl's Lungs In the International Harvester Company Case

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—A pearl breastpin which 18-year-old Olga Martin swallowed while hastily dressing for a party two years ago, was removed from the girl's lungs today at the Lutheran hospital. The pin was located by X-rays and removed with forceps. The breastpin, which she had placed between her lips while fastening her collar accidentally slipped down the windpipe. Only recently she suffered inconvenience from the pin.

CAVALRY HORSE

Kicked to Death An Army Mule and Official Inquiry Is Being Made

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 18.—Which of two cavalry horses kicked to death an army mule is to be the subject of inquiry of a board composed of five officers ranging in rank from a second lieutenant to a major. The mule met his death one night while the recent army maneuvers were being held in the Santa Clara valley. He was tied to a picket line and on either side of him was the mount of a regular army officer. In the morning the mule was found dead and the evidence that he was kicked to death was indisputable but there was nothing to indicate which of the two equine suspects was the guilty one; hence the board inquiry.

MOST SANGUINARY BATTLE OF THE

WAR IN TRIPOLI WAS FOUGHT

NEAR DERNE

ROME, Sept. 18.—The most sanguinary engagements of the war in Tripoli were fought yesterday near Derne, a town on the Mediterranean coast, 140 miles northeast of Bengazi. The Italians lost 61 men killed and 113 wounded. The Turks and Arabs left more than 800 dead on the fields. Forty-one prisoners, including an Arab chief, fell into the hands of the Italians.

The battle opened at daybreak, when a force of Turks and Arabs surprised and attacked the Italian lines. The fight raged for four hours but the superior Italian artillery, supplemented by brilliant bayonet charges finally routed the Mussulmans, who fled in disorder.

General Reissoli, commander of the Italian army in Tripoli, in his report to the war office, estimated that the Turks must have lost 1000 men killed, and that more than 1000 others were wounded.

REPORT ON LAWRENCE DYNAMITE CASES

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—District Attorney Pelletier had practically completed his grand jury investigation of the Lawrence dynamite cases today, and a report may be had by Saturday, he said. Only a few witnesses were heard today. In the course of the investigation, which has to do with the alleged illegal distribution of dynamite in the homes of Lawrence mill strikers during the textile disturbance last winter, people of nearly all walks of life have been before the grand jury. Men identified with the mills as employes before and during the strike, men in charge of the mills, a judge of the police court of Lawrence, prominent business men and politicians of that city and militiamen on duty during the strike have been called upon to testify.

MAY POSTPONE MEETING

Of Merrimack Valley

Waterway Board

Owing to the accident which befell two of the members and the assistant clerk of the Merrimack Valley Waterway board Monday night, the hearing which was scheduled to be held in this city next week will, in all probability, be postponed. The board was to have held a meeting in this city last night and it was indefinitely postponed on account of the accident.

Under the provisions of the bill, the water way board is to make a report by Feb. 1, but it is believed there are so many phases to the situation that it will be a herculean task if the investigation is made and the report completed by that time. With the accident still further delaying the proceedings, there is a possibility that the board may ask and be granted an extension of time.

HIS EYE INJURED

Michael White Hurt While at Work at Lowell Gas Co.'s Works This Afternoon

Michael White, aged 25 years and residing at 41 Rock street, while at work at the Lowell Gas Light Co.'s works in School street, suffered an injury to his eye, a piece of steel entering the optic. He was taken to the Emergency hospital where he received treatment. The injured man was employed by the Rice-Conley Co.

FRESHMAN DYING

As Result of Hazing He Received at the Middletown, N. Y. High School—Spine Badly Hurt

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Sept. 18.—Gordon Kyle, a freshman in the Middletown high school, lies at the point of death at his home at Kyle's Station as the result of a hazing. It is charged he was compelled to push a pencil across the floor of the school gymnasium with his nose and while doing so he was urged along by being frequently kicked, with the result that his spine has been seriously injured.

Finger Sprained

Chester John, aged 24 years, employed at the "Peep" shops in the Boston & Maine railroad at Billerica, suffered a sprain of the index finger of his left hand as a result of falling from a staging last night. He was taken to the Emergency hospital where he received treatment.

MASTERS OF GRAMMAR SCHOOLS

To Discuss School Matters Friday Afternoon—Dates for State Registration Announced

There will be a meeting of the grammar masters at the school committee room on Friday afternoon, Sept. 20, at 4.15 o'clock. Notice of the meeting has been sent the grammar masters by the superintendent of schools, Hugh J. Molloy. "The meeting is called," said Mr. Molloy, "for the purpose of discussing school details and administration incidental to the opening of a new year and to receive suggestions from the principals concerning matters for which the superintendent must propose plans in the near future."

Supt. Molloy has requested the grammar masters that if they have any pupils enrolled in their schools in grammar grades who reside outside their school districts to send their names and addresses to his office. The notice reads as follows:

To Grammar School Masters:

If you have any pupils enrolled in your schools in grammar grades who reside outside your school district, please send their names and addresses to this office at your earliest convenience. If you have any written or printed material relating to these pupils, and concerning their attendance at a school outside the district in which they reside, please send it when you send the names."

State Election Registration

The dates for state election registration were given out at the office of the board of registrars of voters this forenoon and are as follows: Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Oct. 1, 2, 3 and 4; Monday, Oct. 7, Thursday and Friday, Oct. 10 and 11, and Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 14, 15 and 16. The hours for registration will be from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. The registration for the primaries on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week, added 217 new names to the list. The greatest number of names for any one ward came from ward two, 100 names being added from that ward. The primaries will be held next Tuesday.

John King's Reckoning

John King is quite a hand at figures and is connected, at times, with the office of the board of registrars. John can carry out through a long vista of years when it comes to dooping out figures having to do with politics. John went to his figures this morning because he had heard that the towns were getting in line to stand pat for Mr. Glines for congress and he allows "at if the towns stand by the man from Reading and he gets 500 votes in Lowell, John Jacob Rogers will have a fight on his hands. Mr. King says that the 30 towns in the district have about as many votes as the two cities, Lowell and Woburn.

Scarlet Fever Cases

Fifty cases of scarlet fever have been reported at the office of the board of health since August 1, and a majority of the 50 cases have been reported since the first of the present month. Several of the cases have developed on the route of one particular milk dealer and the board has been trying to trace the trouble to his dairies but hasn't been able to do so yet. The number of contagious diseases always shows a big increase at the "coming home time" of summer vacationists and the opening of the schools and the board of health has notified the superintendent of schools and the school physicians to exercise extra precaution at this time. No deaths from scarlet fever have been reported.

Hawkers and Peddlers

Commissioner Cummings says that if hawkers and peddlers want to continue in business in Lowell they had better carry their licenses with them instead of leaving them at home. Mr. Cummings arrested a peddler yesterday who was shy his license. The man said he had a license at home. He didn't say if it was in the pantry, the ice chest or the wood shed and Mr. Cummings didn't care. He told him that if he ever caught him again without his license he would recommend to the license commissioners that his license be revoked.

The Comfort Station

When the proposition to locate the public comfort station in Paige street was first mentioned it was stated that in all probability considerable ledge would be encountered because it was known by the street department and others, to exist there. It was not thought, however, that ledge would be encountered right off the bat but such has been the case and the contractor's sole consolation is contained in the fact that his contract allows him $3 extra per cubic yard for ledge work. It was figured that the station could be built for $1550 but the city engineer allows that with the extra money for ledge the whole of the appropriation, $2200, will be eaten up. The cost of repaving the street is not included in the appropriation and it, too, will be extra. The work of repaving the street will be done by the street department.

The Smoke Inspector

Once more the hard-working smoke inspector is on the job. Just before Mayor O'Donnell left city hall, Monday, preparatory to going to Buffalo, to attend the annual convention of the League of American Municipalities, the smoke inspector presented him a formidable typewritten list of questions relative to "smoke," with the request that he present the queries to the smoke inspector of Buffalo.

From Office to Office

It's an ill-wind that blows nobody good. The temporary clerks who have been working in the assessor's office under the civil service law have finished their assessorial duties and are now assistants to the city treasurer in making out tax bills. Up to this year the city treasurer could employ whoever he saw fit for the tax-bill job but as his department is now under civil service rules he was required to employ only civil service clerks. As the clerks in the assessor's office finished their work just as the extra work in the treasurer's office was about to begin Treasurer Siles had them transferred to his department.

MANCHESTER, Vt., Sept. 18.—Sixty-six golfers started today in the thirteenth annual tournament of the Equinox cup and other prizes, at the Ekwanok Country club. Fred Herres, of Westbrook, and Norman Hunter of Ildinboro, Scotland, attracted a large gallery but neither was in best form.

The best scores among the cards turned in at noon included:

F. P. Clark, Ekwanok 80; Holden Wilson, Cincinnati, 81; F. S. Douglas, Nassau, 82; C. S. Clark, Ekwanok 83; M. R. Marston, Cranford, 86.

Occurred in Highlands
This Morning

There was considerable excitement in the Highlands this morning, when a runaway horse crashed into another wagon at the corner of Westford and Stevens streets. Fortunately there was no damage outside of a few scratches suffered by one of the horses. People coming down Stevens street in the direction of Middlesex street at 8:30 o'clock this morning were suddenly set back when they saw a horse hitched to one of Scribner's laundry wagons going up the hill at a very fast clip. There was no driver in the wagon and the horse came from Middlesex street. When the frightened animal reached Westford street, the wagon collided with a wagon owned by the Lowell Gas Light Co. The maddened horse, however, was brought to a stop before any damage was done. It was said that the horse hit the Scribner's laundry wagon was slightly injured about the legs.

Permanent Receivers
PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 18.—Permanent receivers for the Providence engineering works were appointed today without bonds by presiding Justice Tanner of the supreme court upon the petition of the Industrial Trust Co. of this city. The bank is one of several banking institutions including the Worcester Trust Co. of Worcester, which has claims against the company amounting in the aggregate of $150,000. The receivership came as the result of the suit against the United States Motors Co., which owes the engineering works about $152,000.

Chas. E. Anderson at the

Charles E. Anderson, secretary of the local Moulders' union and a well known labor man, left this city today for Milwaukee, where he will attend the annual international convention of the Iron Workers. Mr. Anderson was elected a delegate by the local union, and he expects to take an active part in the proceedings. Mr. Anderson left on the 11:59 train and was accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Oscar Peterson, of Minneapolis, who has been visiting here during the summer months. Mrs. Peterson is a former Lowell woman and she greatly enjoyed her vacation here. Mr. Anderson plans to remain in the middle west a few days after the convention, and will visit all the interesting points in that section before his return to Lowell.

Principal Ames of the Textile School Is Pleased With the Bright Prospects of Success

LOWELL TEXTILE SCHOOL

The Lowell Textile school day sessions will begin on Tuesday, September 24, and the night school of the institution will open for the fall term on the evening of Monday, October 1, the latter retaining the usual hours, namely from 7 to 9 o'clock on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays.

There have been several changes in the force of instructors this year. Mr. Charles E. Anderson, secretary of the local Moulders' union and a well known labor man, left this city today for Milwaukee, where he will attend the annual international convention of the Iron Workers. Mr. Anderson was elected a delegate by the local union, and he expects to take an active part in the proceedings. is widening its resources. Of course, the engineering and chemical departments relate simply and solely to the manufacture of cloth; graduates of these are textile chemists or textile engineers. But the relations of chemistry and chemistry and engineering to this industry are very evident and the fact that the student has an opportunity of learning these branches affords him a better and wider field for his work.

Present indications point to an enrollment which promises to be even larger than it has been in the past. In previous years the students at the school have numbered between 100 and 175 in the day sessions. The night sessions have attracted many more than this and the attendance at those in the evening has been steadily increasing.

Frederick Bussiere is Missed From His Regular "Beat"

The many friends of Mr. Frederick Bussiere of 471 1/2 Moody street, will be pained to learn that he is confined to his home with a severe illness. Mr. Bussiere, who was 75 years of age last July, is the oldest man in the employ of the city. His present occupation being sparrow hawk. His "beat" is Decatur to Merrimack and from there to the city hall and back.

Mr. Bussiere has been in the employ of the city for the past 29 years, his first work having been in the sewer department, where for three years he was kept busy at the drill. Later he was shifted to the street department, reserving curb stones, which work he accomplished in a capable manner for six years. From there he went to work on the ledge in Bevers street and later returned to the sewer department until two years ago when he was assigned to his present job. Despite his age Mr. Bussiere is still alert and very active at work, and the past few days have been a torture to him, for his place he says is at work.

Mr. Bussiere was born at St. Louis, Mo., 22 years ago, and has been in Lowell 22 years, having been naturalized shortly after his arrival. He is the father of 12 children, nine of whom are living, seven being married. He has sent three sons to college and has a daughter who is a graduate of the Lowell Textile school and explained the reason for his constant branching out and widening of his courses. The field of activity which is open to graduates of a textile school is becoming broader each year and many industries outside of the manufacture of fabrics are creating a demand for young men with a training of this kind. For example, firms which are engaged in the manufacture of automobile tires find place for the graduates since the tires are partly constructed of a fine cotton fibre and a man who understands this is necessary to examine and inspect it as it comes in. Again, the government employs a number of young men with a textile school training and these are well paid. Thus it is that the local institution

Registration for the evening classes will be held every evening till the opening, beginning Sept. 26.

Athletics
Athletics at the institution have been in no way neglected and football will absorb all interest as soon as the fall term begins. Frank A. Brady, who for the past several years has been coach of the team, will resume his duties in that capacity again this season. Mr. Brady is a well known athlete himself and his efforts in behalf of the success of the textile school eleven have been greatly appreciated in the past seasons. He is a graduate of Dartmouth college and assisted in the coaching there. Manager Ryder has prepared an excellent schedule which will be ready for publication soon. Games will be played with New Hampshire state, Cushing academy, Lawrence academy, Groton preparatory school, St. John's Academy at Danvers and Exeter, A. Thompson, who was captain of the team last season has been elected to lead the team again this year.

LOCAL 1610

Of Carpenters' Union to Meet Tonight and Hear Report of Sunday's Outing

Local 1610 of the Carpenters' union will hold a meeting in Carpenters' hall this evening, and a report of the outing held by the members at their camp at Willow Lake Sunday will be heard. During the summer months several members of the union erected a camp at Willow Lake, at the corner of Big Indian and County roads, and as the work was done on spare time, it was delayed considerably. It was finished last week and formally opened Sunday. About 125 members and friends assembled there during the day and all had a most enjoyable time. The feature of the day was the dinner provided, the latter being given under the direction of Alvin A. Lee, business agent of the Carpenters in Lowell. The latter is quite a cook and the report that he served was greatly enjoyed by all.

Resignations Accepted
NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The republican national committee accepted the resignations today of its members from Minnesota, Oklahoma and Ohio and declared vacant the seats held by members from New Jersey, West Virginia and North Carolina, who are Roosevelt supporters. ED. J. SHANAHAN'S WILL A COMPLAINT IS FILED

Being Contested by His Sister of This City Against the Boston & Maine Road

The will of Edwin J. Shanahan, formerly a druggist in this city, who died in Taunton on the 27th of June last, is being contested by a sister, Mrs. Kate Curtin of Agawam street, Lowell. The property left by Mr. Shanahan amounted to about $100,000 realty and $5000 personal, and the will was drawn up by himself a year and one-half ago previous to his death, but not formally executed until a week prior to his death.

Since leaving Lowell 15 years ago Mr. Shanahan had been practicing medicine in Taunton and owned considerable property. He married about three years prior to his death and by the terms of his will divided his property between his wife, Mrs. Florence Shanahan, and a sister and brother living in Ireland, except for a bequest of $100, which he left to his sister, Mrs. Curtin.

Through her attorney, John W. McEvoy, Esq., Mrs. Curtin states that it is alleged that the crypsis with which Mr. Shanahan was suffering rendered him mentally unbalanced and that such was his condition when the will was executed. At the preliminary hearing which was held in Taunton last Monday, the contestant put in no evidence. After the will was formally allowed an appeal was taken and the case will come up in Taunton in November, ex-Mayor William S. Woods of the latter city appeared in defence of the will.

SAYS HE IS VICTIM OF HATE

Former Millionaire Arrested at Stoneham is Charged With Being Fugitive

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—Once the leading leather merchant of Bristol, England, reputed to be worth a million dollars, respected by the leading merchants of England, and having unlimited credit, William Vassor Collier, 50 years of age, now penniless with a wife and four children in this country, was yesterday placed under arrest at Stoneham, charged by English authorities with being a fugitive from justice.

Real Life Rivals Fiction

The life of Collier rivals fiction. Married to a woman prominent in English circles of aristocracy, possessing great wealth and counting an unlimited number of leading English officials and business men among his friends, the son of an ex-mayor of Northampton, he left his home in 1909 and his wife without a home.

His business went, accused of dishonesty and unable even to find work, he left England, nine months after his failure, with two sons, graduates of Oxford University, who were in business with him, and all three came to this country.

He was one of the largest leather importers in England, and traded principally with the Van Tassel Leather company of Stoneham, and had met E. D. Van Tassel many times in England and this country.

On his arrival with his sons in this country he went immediately to the Van Tassel company in Stoneham, with his two sons, and all three secured positions, working at the start for the meager sum of $3 a week. From his first position, that of cleaning the leather, he rose to a leather storer and was able to send to England for his wife, who arrived in Boston several months ago, after undergoing a critical operation.

Life for the family in this country seemed to contain a few bright rays of sunshine and Collier's two daughters came across to join him. The eldest son, a short time ago sent to England, for his former work, married her, and the entire family lived happy and contented in a cottage at 21 Congress street, Stoneham.

Arrested For Fraud

Yesterday while at work in the tannery with his two sons he was placed under arrest, charged with fraud, by making false entries in certain documents, a statement of account and balance sheets, of Hudd & Collier, in the year 1909, with intent to defraud the Hudd & Collier, and the George Angus Co., two of his largest creditors, when he failed.

Yesterday John Elliott Bell, acting consul general in this state for England, acting upon instructions from England, applied for a warrant, which was granted Monday by United States Commissioner Hayes.

Thinking his past forgotten, still held in implicit trust by his faithful wife and family, the tears of bitter grief coursed down his cheeks when, yesterday afternoon, Deputy United States Marshal Bennett placed him under arrest. Owing to the fact that his arrest was based on extradition proceedings, no arrests were permissible and he was held without bail for a hearing before the federal government Friday. He was lodged in the Essex House.

Heart-broken over her husband's misfortune and nearly prostrated by his arrest, Mrs. Collier, a white-haired, distinguished woman bearing all the indications of culture, yesterday brandished a false statement of the English authorities that he had fled from England to escape from arrest.

Left This Week to Enter Smith College—The Term Begins Next Monday

During the past few days many Lowell young ladies left this city for Northampton, Mass. to attend the well known Smith college, located there. The session of the college opens on Monday. This morning four girls took the train from the local station and the baggage of several others is at the depot more are expected during the remainder of the week.

Two immigrants arrived on the Fall River boat train this morning, coming here from their native land, the New York. After transferring their baggage, both went to Lawrence.

Several of the morning trains were behind schedule this morning, the delays being due to the heavy traveling.

GIRLS! GIRLS! SURELY TRY THIS! DOUBLES BEAUTY OF YOUR HAIR

All you need is a 25 cent bottle of "Danderine"—Hair gets lustrous, fluffy and abundant

Immediate!—Yes! Certain!—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

A delightful surprise awaits, particularly those who have been careless, whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use of Danderine, when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty soft hair, and lots of it, surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.

MURDERED WOMAN IDENTIFIED

She Was Mrs. Roberts of Gloucester—Police Are Baffled by the Mystery

MANCHESTER, Sept. 18.—The identity of the woman found floating in the Manchester river late Monday afternoon was established late yesterday when Benjamin H. Roberts of Gloucester told Chief of Police Converse that he was positive that the body was that of his wife. The general description of the body and the identification of the clothing satisfied the chief and Mr. Roberts that the dead woman was Mrs. Roberts.

Mrs. Roberts, whom Medical Examiner George A. Stickney of Beverly declared had been killed by violence, disappeared from her home, 10 Centennial avenue, Gloucester, a week ago last Monday, Sept. 9. She spent the day with Mrs. T. L. White of Central street, Manchester, and late that night started for her home. Mrs. White accompanied her to the railroad station about 11 o'clock and chatted for a few moments with her guest in the railroad station. Mrs. White then left Mrs. Roberts to await the arrival of the 12:14 train for Gloucester.

Since then no one, as far as could be learned last night, saw her alive again.

Children Called for Mamma

When Mrs. Roberts did not return to her home early on the morning of Sept. 10 her husband, who is a watchman at Reed's wharf in that city, did not become unduly alarmed. He thought that perhaps his wife remained over night in Manchester, but the next day, when the two little children, a boy and a girl, began to cry for their mamma, he made some inquiries.

Mr. and Mrs. Roberts had been married a little more than six years and according to the husband the domestic relations were happy.

During the week that elapsed between the disappearance of his wife and the finding of the body in the Manchester river, within a quarter of a mile of the apartment walls that checks the water at Central avenue, the husband waited for some word of his wife.

When he read the story of the finding of the body of the woman he suspected the body was that of his wife.

Sure Victim Was His Wife

Yesterday afternoon, after Medical Examiner Stickney had performed the autopsy on the body in a barn in Peabody, and after the remains had been interred in North Beverly cemetery, the husband of the dead woman called upon Undertaker Gentley at Beverly and asked to see the body. He was referred to the medical examiner and as a result of the description furnished by the latter, Chief Roberts became satisfied that it was his wife's body that was found floating in the water.

In addition to the general description there were distinguishing marks that left no doubt as to the identity. When the husband of the woman called at the Hamilton police station at 10:30 last night and viewed the clothing hanging from the ceiling of the lock-up the last vestige of doubt disappeared. He stated positively that the woman was his wife.

Chief Says Man is in the Case

Chief Converse and State Officer Keating, who were called into the case yesterday afternoon at the request of the local police, are confronted with what appears to be a baffling murder mystery, notwithstanding that Chief Converse stated last night that he felt that he could locate the woman with a man on the night of her disappearance.

The autopsy yesterday afternoon revealed that life was extinct before the body reached the water. Medical Examiner Stickney is satisfied that the woman died as the result of a blow, or blows, from some blunt instrument. There was a jagged wound behind the left ear, near the base of the skull, and the left side of the face and head was bruised. The flesh near the left cheek bone was badly abraded and the eye was also bruised and discolored.

Thought Victim Mrs. Wade

Several of the townspeople viewed the remains of the woman after it was recovered Monday and some insisted that it was the body of a resident of the town, Mrs. Benjamin Wade, who disappeared nearly a month ago. When Mrs. Wade's father, Francis Bruce, stated that the body was not his daughter's, the police were perplexed.

That Mrs. Roberts was murdered within the confines of Manchester is the belief of Chief Converse and others. Old-time residents of the town, in substantiation of their claims that the woman met her death inside the harbor limits, or at least that the body was thrown into the water at the land side of the harbor, claim that no body was ever known to float ashore from the ocean.

There have been scores of drowning accidents in the outside harbor, but not one body has been recovered since Ram Island. The Manchester river is a narrow arm of the sea, which brings up against a dead wall at Central street in the center of the town. The body was found less than a quarter of a mile from the town hall.

Scene Placed at Long Beach

Although the police had no tangible clue to work upon before dusk, Chief Converse and State Officer Keating boarded a power boat late in the afternoon and cruised over the waters of Manchester river and the harbor. They carefully scrutinized the rocky shores, which are surrounded by handsome estates, and cruised out as far as Mystery and Ram Islands.

Last night there was a well-grounded theory that the murder was committed at a point near the entrance to the harbor.

Chief Converse would not deny that he strongly favored the theory that Mrs. Roberts was slain in a secluded spot on a beach not far away from Ram Island, called Long Beach, about a mile and a half from the town. He steadfastly refused to state whether or not he placed a great deal of dependence on the supposition that the woman was lured to a fisherman's shack and perhaps slain before the isolated place was reached.

To Question Man

Chief Converse admitted that there was one beach in particular that would afford the opportunity for taking human life. At this beach the houses set well back from the water front and at the hour at which Mrs. Roberts is supposed to have been killed the neighborhood would not be disturbed unless by some unusual commotion.

Before the identification of the body was established beyond doubt, it was said that if the victim proved to be the Roberts woman there was a strong probability of the police placing her in company with a man on Sept. 9, and that his man, who is not a resident of Manchester, would be questioned sharply.

The motive of robbery is scouted, and Chief Converse will enlist the services of the Gloucester police in the hope of finding out if Mrs. Roberts had any suitors. The officers will also try to trace the movements of Mrs. Roberts from the time she reached the railroad station with Mrs. White.

Mrs. White is positive that she left her caller close to 11 o'clock. The apartment watch pinned to the inside of Mrs. Roberts' shirtwaist stopped at 11:45.

SOMETHING NEW IN DRESS GOODS

Scintella is a silken, silvery glow, over a surface of a darker tone or color. Very attractive, but to be appreciated one should see it.

It is lightweight, having enough body to give it richness. As good results in straight effects, as in soft folds and fullness. Its silky surface makes it as dressy as silk, but is more durable. Supple and pliable, it still has sufficient resistance to prevent wrinkling.

Suitable for frocks, for short trips or week-end stays, as it packs snugly without crushing. Can be fashioned into a good wearing gown, not too dressy for most occasions and dressy enough for most any occasion. 45 inches wide. Obtainable in a variety of colors and in light and dark tones.

When a big fire occurs in any section of a large city, all the fire apparatus in that section, and often from adjacent sections, are called into service, and frequently this causes considerable difficulty in distributing the remaining companies and apparatus to the best advantage. In handling such situations in Chicago, the fire alarm headquarters in the city hall is provided with a map of the city on which each fire house is designated by a small electric light bulb, operated by a switchboard. These bulbs are illuminated during the time the apparatus of each fire station is in the house, but as soon as the apparatus leaves its house, a plug bearing the number of the station in question is removed from the switchboard and the bulb designating this station on the map becomes dark.

By means of this system, a glance at the map suffices to show the unprotected territory, and the fire apparatus not in actual use are distributed accordingly. This is one of the first maps of this type in America. They have been used for some time in Germany. Milwaukee has a fire map of a somewhat similar type.

"Only One Tobacco in the World," says Geo. M. Cohan, Celebrated Actor, "And That is Tuxedo"

"It's great to see you, old man! Come in! Sit down! How are you? Have a smoke? Oh, take a pipe—always carry 'em for my friends. Nothing so companionable when old pals meet!"

Geo. M. Cohan, the bristling, bustling, breezy actor, actor, composer and manager, had just returned from Europe.

"Smoke Tuxedo? Don't have any other," he said. "Only brand I smoke. It's only ten cents—and it's the best ever."

"Say—before you ask it: Don't! Don't ask me to say what I think of Europe. It's not necessary. I'm going to tell you. The way they hoodoo us Americans, get us over there, and then refuse us our favorite luxuries in life! Well—it's the limit."

"Now take me. I'm not at home without my pipe. It's a small enough comfort to allow a man. But in France I couldn't smoke. They gave us fine wine, and spiced snails, and other pleasing edibles—but tobacco! Wow!"

"Tuxedo is the only thing I smoke. It's the only tobacco I consent to smoke. I've had my experience, with tobacco and girls, as most men have. And, like most men, I've selected one tobacco and one girl."

"In Paris, the home of champagne and grisettes, they sell little cigarettes strong enough to blow off your head. As for cigars—well, steer clear of them. And smoking tobacco—that was the limit. In England, too—the dear, jolly chaps handed out cans of tobacco just trickling with perfume. It smelled nice—if you like

"I said America and Tuxedo for me. Why, listen, old man, it's the deuce to go without your smoke. It makes you feel like walking the street without your coat. 'Pon my soul, I thought I'd do a rah-rah shouting act when I got on the boat and found Tuxedo on sale."

"One unique thing about Tuxedo, you fill your pipe and puff leisurely away for hours. It doesn't burn up as some tobaccos do. It burns slowly, and with a smoke that has a soft aroma. You get more joy from a given quantity, because of its slow consumption and its incomparable delicacy, than from any tobacco I know. One thing puzzles me—that's why no one in this age of competition and imitation has ever been able to equal Tuxedo. D'you know?"

RED SOX DROPPED TWO GAMES

To Cleveland Naps—First Went Eleven Innings, With Collins Opposing Gregg

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 13.—Cleveland took two games from Boston yesterday, thereby preventing the leaders from clinching the 1912 pennant.

Both games were close, Cleveland winning each time in the final turn at bat. The first game, a pitchers' battle between Collins and Gregg went 11 innings, finally being lost by Boston on successive hits by Turner, Jackson and Lajoie. Carish featured this game by making three singles, a double and a triple in five times at bat. In the second game, after Boston had taken the lead in the fourth inning, Cleveland came right back and won the game on a pass to the rear, out by Jackson and Lajoie and hits by Hendrix and Granev.

The scores:

BASES ON BALLS FATAL

Control Is Most Important to Pitchers

Bases on balls are the surest way to lose ball games, and the only wonder is that more young pitchers show so little sense and ambition about improving their control. Observation of the leading pitchers of the country will show conclusively that control is perhaps the most essential feature of real success in the pitching line, and yet scores of young pitchers break in with everything in their favor, if they are willing to work hard, who lose their chance for big success by failing to realize the tremendous importance of sure control of the ball.

Frank Bancroft of Cincinnati tells with pride of the way Charley Radbourne, as great a pitcher as ever lived, used to go out by himself in the morning and practice throwing at a bottle set up on a post about the height of a man's belt. He would not rest until he had gained the ability to knock the bottle off the post whenever he wished to. This was the basic secret of his great success. He could always put the ball wherever he wanted to.

Mathewson has always had perfect control of every kind of ball he uses. So has Johnson. So has every first class pitcher. Babe Marquard, when he first joined the Giants, was as wild as a hawk and was perfectly worthless to the club until long practice gave him the control which he needed. Today he is a winner because he can put the ball anywhere he wants to at any time and for any batter.

The pitcher who cannot do this will not be a real success. Big curves and great speed amount to little or nothing if the enemy is going to be favored with a walk every time or so at a critical time. But, though control is mainly a matter of steady and faithful practice, there are very few young pitchers who will take the trouble to do any extra work in the effort to secure it, so when their trial comes they give a couple of bases on balls at the wrong time and look like 30 cents when, with control, they might have made good.

Bases on balls have done more to lose ball games than any one factor in the sport. The pitcher who is too free with them will never be a winner, and the youngster who realizes this fact and spends some extra time practicing his control will always beat the lazier fellow who likes to sit around and talk about his hard luck.

BRITTON GIVEN AWARD

His Go With Saylor Was Disappointing

BOSTON, Sept. 13.—Owing to the business of the referee in declaring a foul, Jack Britton of Chicago was given the decision over Young Saylor of Indianapolis in the sixth round at the Pilgrim A. A. last night. The bout was limited to 12 rounds and the large crowd present was enjoying the contest when it came to an unsatisfactory end.

Saylor had a number of times violated the agreement to break clean and had repeated when the referee stopped the bout yet none of the blows did Britton any harm and he had made no complaint.

There was disappointment when Britton was sent to his corner and declared the winner. Few had seen a questionable blow, but Saylor did, however, hit Britton right. They were getting ready to break away from a clinch when Saylor started a right-hand punch for the body. Britton jumped a bit in the air and the blow landed on his hip bone.

Up to the time that the bout was stopped Britton had a big lead on Saylor, but there was little difference between them in strength.

Britton gave the same classy exhibition that he did against Murphy and it looked like a sure victory for him. Saylor is such a cunning boxer, however, that he might have turned what looked like defeat into a victory.

Britton had no trouble shooting his tantalizing left into Saylor's face, and the latter did considerable covering up. Several times in the clinches Saylor used his favorite over and underhand punch, but Britton did not appear to mind it. The Chicago boxer swung some hard rights to Saylor's ribs and kidneys and several times followed with left hooks into the stomach.

Saylor showed that he was peeved at being hit so often by Britton and not being able to get in a return.

Football at Princeton

PRINCETON, Sept. 13.—The Princeton football coaches have practically decided that football this year is to be an open game and they are devoting all their energies to perfecting the candidates in wide shifts and forward, double and delayed passes. An innovation in the early games will be the extensive use of linemen as ground gainers.

Manager George Stovall, by the way, has been so successful with the Browns during the last two months that great things are predicted by the St. Louis fans for next season.

Joe Birmingham is the seventh manager the Naps have had since the expansion of the American League. His predecessors in order were McAleer, Armour, McGuire, Lajoie, Stovall and Davis.

The veteran Jesse C. Burkett has agreed to again manage the Worcester team next season. There was some talk to the effect that the old scout would retire from the team, but the latest announcement from Worcester says that he will again direct the team and this time he hopes will win another pennant.

Some days ago Tig Arundel died. It was announced that he was the umpire in the New York State league. Such is not so. Tig Arundel was a player 30 years ago, playing in several leagues. The Arundel, who made such a hit in the New York State league this summer is Tom Arundel, formerly of Lawrence. He is far from dead, being alive and well and booked to umpire in the American association next season.

Jack Slattery and Mike Lynch may not be back with Lawrence next season. Slattery went to Lawrence to finish out the season and help Lawrence win the pennant. Slattery may be back with some club in the international league in 1913. He was out of that league last season on account of illness and the death of his father. He hopes to be back next year.

Lynch had a non-reserved arrangement and he, too, may cast his lot with some other team. He was satisfied in Lawrence, though, and may decide to return to that city. The way was Lynch's worst year with the stock and his poor stockwork worried him to the extent that he did not field as well as he had been known to.

Deacon Morrissey, the former New England leaguer, played this past season with Newport News in the Virginia league. He was fined $5 for engaging in a strike against Manager J. J. Grim.

"Ping" Bodie, who went to the White Sox with the reputation for fence busting, has failed to live up to his reputation and the chances are that he will give way to Rolfe Barrows the former Lowell captain. Barrows has hit at a terrific clip for the Jersey City team of the international league this year and is now back with the Chicago outfit and it looks like a good lot that he is going to stick this time.

Fred "Klondike" Smith of N. E. league continues to do good work for the Rochester team of the international league. He is leading that team off in the batting order in hitting and fielding well and Rochester is well satisfied with him.

Billy Smith will manage Atlanta next year. The announcement came from Billy while in Montgomery recently, and while it caused very little surprise, it filled the thoughts of the fans completely. Smith has not been here in the two years he has been with us, and there will be some who will glad to see a new man take hold of the team in 1913. Both the 1911 and 1912 teams looked pretty good, particularly the last, but for some reason or other, both failed to deliver the goods up to sample. Smith knows base ball and has been a very successful manager in the past, so there must have been reasons that were not apparent to the public. He has many friends in Chattanooga who will hate to see him leave Lookoutville. It is a clinch that he can not do worse in Atlanta than those who have managed the team this year, and I hope he will do much better. Norman (Kid) Etherfield, veteran infielder and native of Chattanooga, now with Montgomery, was signed last week to manage the Chattanooga team for next year. The local management made strenuous efforts to have him join the team at once, but Dobbs stated that he was making a first division fight in Montgomery and wanted to keep him until the end of the season. League rules would also have prevented his playing with the Chattanooga club this year. The new manager will have a far easier task than did Smith, when the latter took hold of the team two years ago. Practically a full team is ready to begin training next March, and there are many good men in the squad. There will be some changes, and most likely more men will be signed. It seems to be Smith's luck to give his successor the benefit of the team he has built up. There is not a better judge of players in the business than he, but the new manager usually is the one to profit from Smith's labors. Good luck to Smith in Atlanta and good luck to his successor here in Chattanooga.—Exchange.

SCHOOL BOARD HELD MEETING

Discussed Rules and the Petition of Pawtucketville Residents Without Action

The members of the school board met as a committee on rules last night with the exception of Dr. Bagley who was away on business and Mr. McKenna who is confined to his home with a severe cold. The committee discussed the new rules at length but they delayed action in order to give Superintendent Moley an opportunity to get acquainted with the said rules. Later in the evening Mr. Rogers presented the following petition relative to the Pawtucketville school transfer matter:

Lowell, Sept. 17, 1912.
To the Lowell School Committee:
As a member of the Lowell school committee, I hereby make formal request that a public hearing be granted by the Lowell school committee, to any person whose child, having in previous years been an attendant of the Bartlett grammar school, has been recently notified hereafter to attend the Pawtucketville grammar school.
(Signed) John J. Rogers.

EX-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Says That Woman Suffrage is Coming

WINSTON, Ark., Sept. 18.—On his way to New Mexico, where he is to make his appeal for the progressive party before turning north to Colorado, Col. Roosevelt passed through eastern Arizona today. He was scheduled to make speeches in Albuquerque, Lamy and Santa Fe before leaving the state, a thing which Arizona needed, Col. Roosevelt said, was equal suffrage.

"Woman suffrage is coming and that within a few years in the eastern states," he said. "I don't want to see Arizona fall behind in this regard after setting the pace in other ways."

Col. Roosevelt's physician told him that he must be more careful in the use of his voice. Conversation while the train was in motion was barred, but Col. Roosevelt said he could not keep still all the time and the doctor found it necessary to keep a close watch on his patient to make him obey the rules. The strain of the long campaign has told on Col. Roosevelt, and his voice is slightly husky, although he said that he felt "tough" with some of the hardest fighting of the campaign ahead.

Col. Roosevelt's tour from Denver was settled upon today. He is to leave tomorrow night and go into Nebraska speaking in Hastings, Lincoln and Omaha on Friday. Then he will enter Kansas and will remain over Sunday in Topeka.

After a couple of days in Oklahoma and Arkansas he will head for Memphis, New Orleans, Montreal, New York, Birmingham and Atlanta and then north to North Carolina.

FORMER HEALTH AGENT

Wants His Place in Lawrence Dept.

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—Alleging bad faith on the part of Mayor Scanlon and the address of Lawrence, George W. Smith, a Civil war veteran and a former agent of the board of health of Lawrence, has filed a petition for a writ of mandamus in the supreme judicial court, seeking reinstatement. Justice Sabin has issued an order of writ returnable on Tuesday.

Smith was appointed as agent of the board of health of Lawrence on Feb. 26, 1907, and held that position until Jan. 12, 1912, when, after notice and a hearing, he was removed by the mayor and aldermen. The office held by Smith was abolished on the ground of economy and his duties were transferred to a director of the department of public health.

Smith alleges bad faith and declares that on Jan. 23 last Mayor Scanlon and the aldermen appointed a new officer known as the superintendent of sanitation and have appointed a man to fill that office. Smith further claims that he could only have been removed legally by the board of health and that the action of the mayor and aldermen is void.

LOOKING FOR LOWELL OPERATIVES

Agent for Newmarket Manufacturing Co., Comes Here to Get Skilled Help

A reporter for The Sun came very near capturing a good job this morning when he met a man from Newmarket, N. H., who is in this city in an endeavor to hire people for the Newmarket Mfg. Co. of Newmarket, N. H. According to his statement 20 men and women are to leave this afternoon for the New Hampshire town, where the prospects seem far better than in the Spindle City.

The agent for the above company is Mr. Louis R. Levasseur and this forenoon he established his headquarters in a local drug store. Shortly after 10 o'clock the writer called on him and asked if it was so that he was hiring people for a New Hampshire concern to which he replied in the affirmative.

"Have you a job for me?" queried the writer. "Well, what can you do in a cotton mill?" "To tell you the truth I can't do much, but I am willing to learn."

"I don't doubt your word, but we are not looking for learners, what we want is experienced help and only in two departments, weavers and card room employees. Our place is not a gold mine, but I believe one can do better than in Lowell. I represent the Newmarket Mfg. Co., a cotton plant with 16,000 spindles and we pay very good wages."

"The population of our town is about 3500, all good respectable people and we have good residential facilities, although the electric cars have not as yet been installed. The wages are higher than in Lowell and the board is much cheaper, for one can eat good and be well roomed for between $3 and $4 per week."

"We pay all transportation expenses and it is safe for me to say that who ever will come to Newmarket will never regret it. I will leave late this afternoon with 20 people from this city, men and women, and shall return in a few days at which time I hope to take along with me as many more."

The reporter then informed the agent that he would secure employment in a local mill as an apprentice weaver, and as soon as he is able to run a few looms he would call on him at Newmarket, to which Mr. Levasseur replied: "You will be welcome at any time providing you can run a loom or a card."

FIVE HUNDRED SHOTS FIRED

Pitched Battle Between Union and Non-Union Men at Lafayette, Colorado

LAFAYETTE, Colo., Sept. 18.—Five hundred shots were fired last night in a pitched battle between non-union coal miners employed at the Simpson mine and a body of supposed union men who attacked the stockade, firing at the men within and each time the fire was returned vigorously. Finally the assailants withdrew. The strike has been on the northern Colorado coal fields for more than two years.

SIX PERSONS INJURED

Two Automobiles Were Wrecked in Collision

DR. CLEVELAND WAS TRYING TO AVERT A COLLISION

One of the Machines Was Demolished—The Accident Took Place in Newton

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—Six persons were cut, bruised and suffered nervous shock and two automobiles were wrecked in a collision between a big touring car driven by Joseph Reinherz, 16 years old, of 37 University road, Brookline, and a smaller machine driven by Dr. H. D. Cleveland of 213 Beacon street, Boston, and 145 Worcester street, Wellesley Hills, on the Commonwealth avenue boulevard in Newton, early last evening.

Dr. Cleveland was driving his machine out from Boston. He had as his guests Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Haben of Pasadena, Cal. He was on the south side of the boulevard, which is divided by double car tracks on a grass embankment. When the machine was near Dix lane, opposite the Brae Burn Country club, Dr. Cleveland saw a machine directly ahead of him, going in the same direction, and two machines apparently racing toward him at high speed.

To avert a collision he tried to swerve his machine on to the street railway embankment, but in doing so struck the Reinherz machine, which was ahead of him, demolishing it and throwing the occupants to the ground. In the Reinherz machine, in addition to the youth who was driving it, were his mother, Mrs. Rita Reinherz, and his sister Cora. It turned on its side and the three occupants were tossed half way across the boulevard.

Dr. Cleveland, although badly cut and shaken, went to the assistance of the other injured persons. He found Mr. and Mrs. Haben suffering from minor injuries, and gave his attention to the two Reinherz women, who were lying, apparently unconscious, in the street. Mrs. Reinherz was suffering from multiple cuts and bruises on the face and head and her daughter was badly bruised. Joseph Reinherz was only slightly hurt.

The two other machines that had contributed to the general confusion resulting in the accident, did not stop, but Dr. Cleveland halted another machine and Mrs. Reinherz, Miss Reinherz and Mrs. Haben were taken in it to the Newton hospital. After their injuries were treated, the latter two were able to leave the hospital. Mrs. Reinherz remained there for further treatment. Her injuries are not dangerous.

STREET CLOSED

To Permit Work of Resurfacing Portion of Thorndike Street—Job Will Be Finished Soon

The work of resurfacing that section of Thorndike street, between Highland and Hale streets, is progressing rapidly and it is expected that the thoroughfare will be open for travel soon. For the past several weeks the street has been closed for travel at the point where the work is in progress and motorists are obliged to use other passages.

MINISTER WAS BADLY BEATEN

Riotous Scenes Were Resumed Today at Sitting of the Hungarian Parliament

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Sept. 18.—The riotous scenes which occurred at the opening of the Hungarian parliament yesterday were witnessed again this morning when the sitting of the chamber of deputies was resumed. The opposition members concentrated their attack on Herr Beothy, the minister of the interior, who was struck on the face several times and whose friends did not succeed in rescuing him until he had fallen to the floor. Even before the beginning of the sitting the greatest excitement prevailed. The opposition deputies appeared in the chamber in full force and as soon as the government deputies began to come in the uproar began, the new arrivals being hailed with a storm of abuse. An opposition member shouted the word "Reconquiere" at Minister Beothy. The latter thereupon made a step toward his adversary and asked: "What did you say?" Immediately the oppositionists rushed at the minister striking him with his fists until he fell to the floor. After some struggling the cabinet official was finally rescued by friends.

When the president of the lower house, Count Tisza, took the chair the tumult, which broke out yesterday and which was continuous throughout the sitting, was resumed. A portion of the fire apparatus at the central fire station in Palmer street was called to the Independent Packing and Provision Co. in Market street last night but when the firemen arrived on the scene they found that there was no fire but that smoke was pouring from the smoke room into the street and that was the cause of the alarm.

"FRESNO DAN" NOT IN COURT

"Dakota Dan" Resumed the Witness Stand Under Cross-Examination Today

CAMBRIDGE, Sept. 18.—William C. Russell of Meador, who claims to be the name of Daniel Blake Russell, appeared in court today for the first time since the hearing on Dakota Dan's plea for recognition was resumed before Master Gilbert Peavy.

"Fresno Dan" who has been accepted by the family, failed to appear and statements differed as to his present whereabouts. On his way into court, William Russell met the Dakota claimant face to face but did not respond to the latter's "Good morning, William."

"Dakota Dan" resumed the witness stand under cross-examination when the court opened. He was questioned about an impediment in his speech and was asked if he had ever been treated for it when a boy. He testified to a visit to a specialist but said that his father declined to allow him to take the treatment because of the price.

GOVERNOR WILSON SPOKE THE UNIONIST LEADERS

Told About Handling the Trust Problem Addressed Many Meetings in Ulster Today

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 18.—In a speech which was delivered before the members of the Minneapolis Commercial club here today, Gov. Wilson, the democratic presidential nominee, drew attention to the progressive plank for handling the trust problem.

"The method now proposed of regulating the trusts was suggested in the inquiry by the house of representatives into the steel trust and it was suggested by Mr. Gary and Mr. George W. Perkins," he said.

"They have thought this thing out. It may be, for all I know, that they honestly think that it is a way to safeguard the business of this country. But, whatever they think, this they know that they will save the United States Steel corporation from the necessity of doing a business better than its competitors, for if you will look into the statistics of the United States Steel Corporation you will find that wherever it has competitors the amount of the product which it controls is decreasing; in other words, that it is less efficient than its competitors and its control of product is increasing only by purchase and otherwise they have a practical monopoly."

"Moreover, I have this to say to the workmen. Carry out the plan of Mr. Gary and Mr. Perkins and you will give a control in the market for steel which will suit these gentlemen perfectly. They don't want competitors in the market for steel because new competitors will mean new sales and there are the very men and most all the men who have successfully opposed union labor in the United States and shut it out of their shops and bribed it to be content to be shut out by all sorts of benevolent schemes of profit-sharing which a man would prefer to be joined the union."

"That," he told them to the marines, "was the answer the governor gave to those who thought trusts necessary for economy and efficiency."

When the governor presented here his attack on the "progressive" party's plank in relation to the trusts several hundred members of the club applauded. The governor addressed the 4000 students of the university of Minnesota but did not talk politics.

Mrs. Pether Critically Ill.
WONDERFUL, R. L., Sept. 18.—Mrs. Pether, who is critically ill at her home in this city, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis this morning, other complications have developed and Dr. Harry Deaver of Philadelphia, who performed the operation, assisted by Dr. Shaw of this city, and that her condition is yet dangerous.

The Possibility of the Oil Engine.
The internal combustion gasoline engine is being developed as much in the United States as elsewhere, and the Junkers oil engine, the most recent challenge of the reciprocating heat motor, may be expected to have a great career on this side of the Atlantic. Occasional oil engines in electric central station service—Diesel engines—are already reported, and any class of engine which can operate them successfully.

For marine propulsion also, who knows but the stanch ships that will one day be launched to revive the ancient glory of the American merchant marine will be equipped with oil engines. Our own fleet and those of Europe and Asia will supply the bulk of these vessels, with the great fleets of other parts of the globe to back upon, including the vast supply in Borneo. Oil is the coming fuel for propelling vessels. It is cheap, it is space and weight, it requires smaller crew, and it is incomparably preferable to coal in point of cleanliness. Roughly speaking, in the oil engine one ton of oil equals 3-4 tons of coal, the economy being higher as the size of the engine is increased. In order to compete with oil, coal must be obtained at thirty-nine cents a ton.

A power auxiliary for sailing craft a new engine should find a great field here steam has not had a very extensive application owing to the inconvenience of rigging a temporary engine, the long time required to get steam in an emergency, the valuable cargo space taken up by the boiler, the other hand, is always ready for instant use no fuel is required, the space taken from the cargo is but a small part of the whole, and the oil fuel can be stored where it would be impracticable to store coal. While these advantages, shared by the gasoline auxiliary, a new oil engine, seldom necessitating repairs or overhauling, the absence of any ignition mechanism, differential or reverse gear, and the excellent cooling system.

ENNISKILLIN, Ireland, Sept. 18.—The first of a series of demonstrations preliminary to "Ulster day," by which Sept. 23 will be known and on which date Ulsterites throughout the United Kingdom will sign a covenant pledging themselves not to submit to home rule in Ireland, was held here today with upwards of 20,000 persons participating. Sir Edward Carson, president of the Ulster Orange association and formerly solicitor-general for Ireland, delivered a fighting speech in which he declared that home rule was not a question of politics but was the very life of the country.

Other demonstrations at which the unionist leaders will make addresses are being held throughout the province of Ulster and will continue for ten days.

The Cork Free Press, the newspaper controlled by William O'Brien, says that the speech delivered by Winston Churchill in which the first lord of the admiralty favored the establishment of parliament in different sections of the United Kingdom really means that he will not join in the covenant of Ulster.

Unique among Blouses Model.
Unique among blouses is this one of white chiffon, gathered under a lace stock at the neck and under a satin ribbon belt at the normal waist line.

Plaid in Vogue This Fall.
Some of the very best French suits this fall show delightful touches of plaid about them, and not only have the suits this fall showing trimmings applied to them, but hats are displaying scarfs and blindings of tartan designs, when combined with plaid materials, for too much plaid trimming will make a dress look commonplace and patchy. Too little of it conceals the beauty of its diverse coloring and design. Good, happy, however, the contrasting plaid hues are especially appropriate for fall. Their bright autumn leaf colorings are just right for the cool crisp days, when lighter tints seem faded.

All the clan plaids are used this season. A little preference is given to those with a predominance of red, a color, by the way, which is insistently pushing its way into fashionable favor after a long absence. The plaid color which which plaid is combined should harmonize or reflect some color found in it to get the best and smartest results.

WERE FORCED BELOW YESTERDAY'S FINAL FIGURES

The Rest of the Market Was Inclined To Ease Off—Reading, U. P., and Steel Especially Were Affected

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Resumption of yesterday's buying was observed at the opening of today's stock market. Anthracite shares were especially strong. Reading and Lehigh Valley soon rising a full point with general fractional gains in other active and special issues. Copper stocks were somewhat backward, Amalgamated and Anaconda recording small declines.

Realizing for profits forced some of the leading issues back half a point in the course of the first hour, the general advance was well sustained, however, with considerable activity in independent stocks.

Buying of stocks was resumed with some vigor at the opening today by profit-taking and short selling soon checked the advance. Reading and Lehigh Valley, features of early yesterday's rise, fell back to a level under yesterday's close, this being true also of Union Pacific, St. Paul, Steel and the Coppers. In fact the latter group failed to share at any time in today's rise, in which the independent steel issues and such specialties as Sears, Roebuck were more or less conspicuous. Call money again opened at five per cent, the demand, however, being rather more active.

Buying shifted to the coppers, but their advance made little impression on the general market which was sluggish and hesitating.

Other specialties were taken in after the demand for the coppers were satisfied, particularly beet sugar, which reached the highest figure in its history. Railroads continued unresponsive to these special movements.

The market closed irregular. Realizing in the afternoon forced them below yesterday's final figures and the rest of the market was inclined to ease off, especially Reading, U. P., and Steel.

THE LOWELL SUN

JOHN H. HARRINGTON, Proprietor

SUN BUILDING, MERRIMACK SQUARE, LOWELL, MASS.

Member of the Associated Press

THREE DOLLARS PER YEAR. TWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER MONTH

BETTER STOP SHOOTING AMERICANS

Mexico had better not shoot any Americans as spies or for any other cause. A young man from New York, who joined the Mexican army, has been sentenced to be shot as a spy. The state department at Washington has sent an order to the Mexican government to prevent the execution. The execution decree has doubtless been countermanded, and the matter is likely to be made the subject of pointed negotiations between the two governments. If Mexico keeps on at the internecine warfare in which she has been so long engaged, and if she continues to show such recklessness in regard to the rights of Americans, she may find herself eventually in conflict with the United States forces.

Mexico will have to answer for stray bullets crossing the border into the United States territory. If the Mexicans elect to keep on shooting one another they will have to keep the meter on their own side of the fence.

The record of Taft and Roosevelt is attacked and the performance rather than the platform of the parties is taken as the criterion by which to be guided. Here is a plain statement from the article in reference to the labor record of the republican party:

"From the republican party, as a party, so long as it has had entire control of the legislation and the administration it has had impossible to get any consideration, much less action, on any fundamental question affecting the rights, interests of and the justice due to the toilers of our country, as evidenced by the deaf ear turned toward the toilers by congress when the bill of grievances and protest was presented to the president of the United States, Mr. Roosevelt, and the president pro tem of the senate, Mr. Frye and the speaker of the house of representatives, Mr. Cannon.

WILL THE OPPORTUNITY BE LOST?

The fight precipitated in New York by certain democrats opposed to Dix and Murphy may have disastrous results in November. With a split ticket on one side and a united democracy on the other there should be no difficulty in electing Wilson despite the fact that some states in the west seem to take kindly to the Bull Moose. It all depends upon whether the democratic party knows how to take advantage of its opportunity or whether it will blunder things and give the victory to the opposition.

Governor Wilson is becoming stronger every day; his position on the issues of the campaign is impregnable and if the people of this country want to overthrow the trusts and monopolies; if they want to establish the rule of the people, they must support the democratic ticket.

ROOSEVELT AND HEARST

Of late there appears to be a striking affinity between Mr. Hearst and Col. Roosevelt. Indeed this feeling is so strong that it is quite discernible, although one is in the far east and the other in the far west. They both agree that Wilson is "academic, pedagogical and ignorant of governmental affairs." They agree that the democratic policy on the tariff would injure "the interests," and so they decide that Wilson should be defeated, and that the greatest egoist of the age should be elected. Hearst fought for Clark's nomination and having been beaten in that, as usual, he seeks to defeat the nominee of the democratic party.

TO EXTEND HOME RULE

Winston Churchill's plan for provincial home rule throughout the British Isles is one that will eventually be carried out in all probability in proportion to population. If the United States has over forty state legislatures, ten or twelve, as Churchill proposes, would not be excessive for the British empire. Ireland will be first to get a separate parliament unless present arrangements are defeated, which is not probable. The English people will finally after a long squabble settle down to a new form of government which will have the best features of the republic without its weak points.

VENGEANCE OF WOMEN

When women wreak vengeance on one of their own sex there must be a cause. Out at Norwalk, Ct. the other day a number of women got hold of a nineteen-year-old girl and bringing her to a quiet place stripped her naked and gave her a coat of tar. We cannot imagine what the cause could have been except that the girl was disgracing her sex or else luring some married man away from his wife. The girl has left the town for her own good and that of the village as well; and no doubt she feels that after all the women were not without mercy since they did not set a match to the tar.

WILSON'S DISCRETION

Governor Wilson has shown great moral courage in standing off the bosses and the interests from the first announcement of his candidacy to the present hour. His candor with Col. Harvey and Editor Waterson in telling them that he thought their support would injure him was such as few candidates would show, while his attitude to the Taggart leaders whom he unexpectedly met at Syracuse was equally discreet and cautious. In fact it cannot be said of Wilson that he is lining up with any wrong element. He is determined to win honorably or not at all.

WATER LESS THAN COST

The city of Cambridge is face to face with a controversy over water rates. It is charged that the existing scale of rates is inequitable in that large consumers get the water at less than cost, thus causing the small home and shop owners to pay more than they have any right to pay. Every city makes a liberal reduction to manufacturing concerns that use large quantities of water, but we know of no city except Cambridge that can afford to sell water at less than cost.

GENERAL COXEY AGAIN

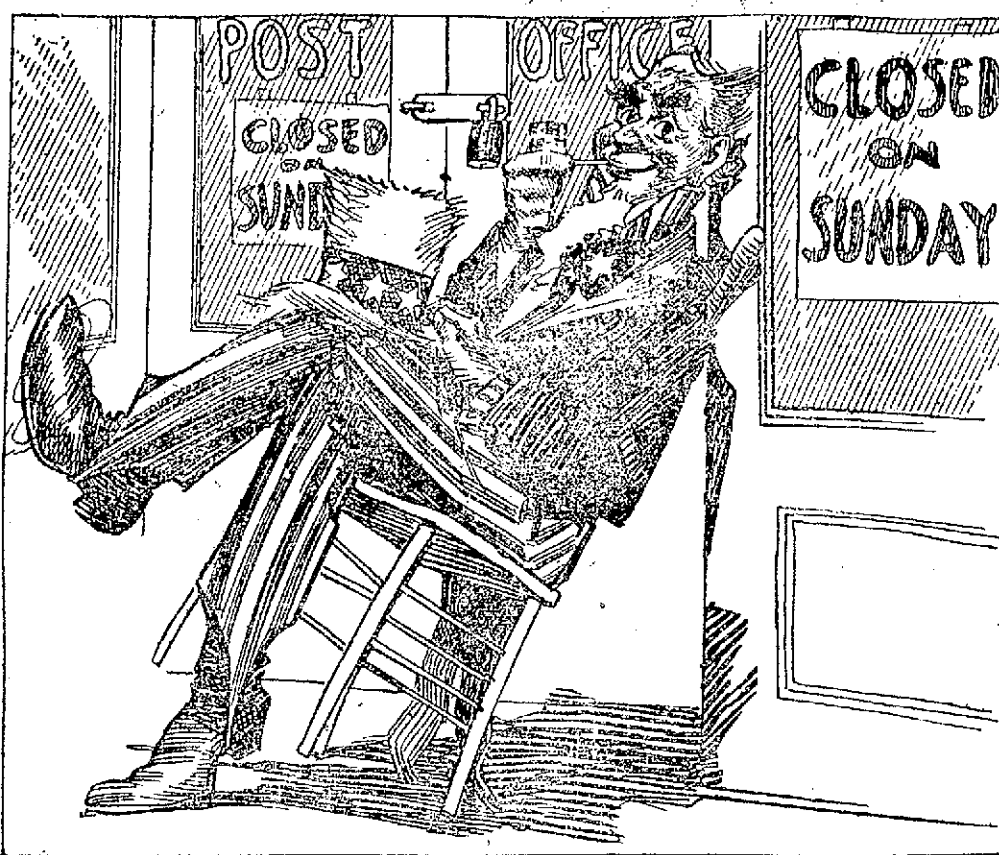

General Coxeey wants to start something. He would like to lead another industrial army as he did in 1891, but he should remember that the times have changed, that he is no good and there is work for every man who will not run away from it. There is now no panic, and although the prices of all commodities are high while work is plenty nobody is likely to suffer from want.

FEDERATION OF LABOR FOR WILSON

The official organ of the American Federation of Labor is out with a three-page article condemning both wings of the republican party and praising the democratic party. This is regarded as an endorsement of the democratic ticket and an appeal to the toilers to rally to its support.

John D. Rockefeller has had constructed secret tunnels under his house, well secured by iron gratings and steel doors with underground retreats are intended as a place of safety in case there should be a sudden outbreak of the Black Handers or a social revolution headed by the anarchists or the I. W. W. The fact that even Rockefeller considers such a mode of escape necessary is a rather unfavorable commentary upon the efficacy of the forces of law and order.

Those who look into Police street will conclude that now it is reasonably certain that we shall have a comfort station in the vicinity of Merrimack square in the near future. When completed it will fill a long felt want.

A DAY OF REST

Seen and Heard

"Girls with pink tinted teeth have a loving disposition and will make good wives," declared Dr. Jacob S. Wells, of Fargo, N. D., a delegate to the National Dentists' convention at Washington. "Young men would do well if they would have their sweethearts' teeth examined before marrying them. Girls who have dull, chunky teeth are not prone to love and will not as a general thing make good wives."

"Girls of witty inclinations have the pink tint just below the gums. It can be readily seen if one will look closely. The color is in the enamel and not, as some dentists state, an overhanging of the gums."

"It would seem that the best course for a young man to pursue when he has doubts about the sincerity of his sweetheart is to have a dentist examine her teeth. I know one who did this. He found that this sweetheart had chunky teeth and that she loved him for his money. These are scientific facts. The disposition of a person can also be determined by the formation of his teeth. If you see a person with square, white, clear teeth, the chances are he or she will have a strong character and will come to distinction in the world."

TYPES

When a gentleman comes smiling to my office for a chat, greets me gayly, almost gladly, and removes his steppe hat. Lays the hat on his knee. Alms and proceeds to take a chair. I'm not fooled by the deceiver. I know he's no millionaire. Through his ratiocination, impressive, and quite dignified he looks, I know well the game he's working. He has called to sell me books.

When a red-faced rotund stranger calls me Mister and appears As delighted with my meeting. And he mentions folks who know me. In a most familiar way. And believes he met my brother. On his travels yesterday. That's enough. I know the answer. Off he trots my endurance. Mr. smooth and polished stranger. Wants to sell me life insurance.

When a man much like a banker, who has recently been shaved, passes me a card of linen. And expensively engraved. Then proceeds to talk of money in a free and easy style. Mentions tens of thousands lightly. And displays a gentle smile. I just yawn, and say I'm busy. Then he says the check is ready. For I know the game he's playing. And I don't buy mining stock.

Thirty Are Reported to be on One Milkman's Route—Board of Health Takes Action

The members of the board of health held their regular meeting at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and discussed at length several petitions for the location of stables in various sections of the city. Another matter which was brought before the board was the fact that there had been about 50 cases of scarlet fever reported in the city and of that number, it is said 30 were on one milkman's route. The first matter to be taken up was the petition of John Vishes who asked permission to erect an addition to his barn at 205 School street. On this the board voted to defer action until the members had taken a view of the premises.

Inspector Coffins reported that, in company with Officer Timothy Dwyer, he had found a horse on the premises of John J. Clancy in Floyd street, where permission has been asked to build a barn. The find was made at 10:30 p. m. Monday, Sept. 18, and Dr. Carroll reported considerable data on the matter of the proposed barn. It was decided to turn the evidence over to the city solicitor to take whatever action he deemed advisable.

John J. Broadbent and others who opposed the granting of permission to John P. Quinn to build a stable for the use of 25 horses in Moore street near the corner of Gordon street, were given a hearing. Mr. Broadbent was represented by Lawyer John J. Hogan, who informed the board that his client owned property adjoining that on which Mr. Quinn intended erecting the barn and he said he was opposed to such action because it would not only prove a nuisance to the people of the vicinity, but it would also have a tendency to lower the value of his property. Another remonstrant was Michael Broderick who owns a two-story block and considerable land directly opposite the site where Mr. Quinn intended to locate the stable, and he said he did not want the stable located there as it would seriously affect his property. Mr. Quinn informed the board that he intended selling the land occupied by his stable in Dix street, and that he needed some place to care for his horses. He and Mr. Broadbent got into a red hot argument over the price paid by the latter for the property which he owned in Moore street and finally Mr. Quinn offered to purchase his property. This sort of talk was cut short, however, by the chairman and it is said that on the way out of the building the two parties came to some agreement on a price whereby Mr. Quinn will become the owner of the property which is now held by Mr. Broadbent. The board voted to take the matter under advisement.

Michael J. Avila, through his counsel, J. Joseph O'Connor, asked permission to build a cow barn in Seneca street. Michael Gorman objected to the barn unless it was connected with the sewer, but this demand a considerable sum of money and Avila did not care to go to such an expense. It was voted to view the property. Michael Gorman and others presented a petition urging that Avila, the same individual who asked for permission to build a cow barn, be not permitted to carry on a piggery in the Seneca street. It was said that since the petition was presented Avila had disposed of all his pigs with the exception of two which he was holding for his own use. The board voted that he be officially notified to get rid of the two remaining pigs and to discontinue using his property as a piggery in the future.

On the petition of John W. McEwen, who objects to the use of a suction fan which he alleges throws off an offensive odor from the basement of Pat's Spa, the board voted to inspect the premises.

Agent Bates reported that since August 1 there had been 50 cases of scarlet fever reported in the city, 30 of which it is said were on one milkman's route. The department will try and locate the cause, and also take every precaution to prevent the spread of the disease.

BURGLAR GOT 10 YEARS

Already Spent 15 Years in Western Prisons

DORCHESTER, Sept. 18.—In the Norfolk superior criminal court at Dedham yesterday James Sullivan who has three aliases, received a sentence of from eight to ten years at the state prison on a conviction for breaking and entering the dwelling of David Snedden, a member of the state board of education, at Brookline, on May 21, last. On another conviction for breaking and entering the dwelling of David J. Anderson at Brookline on the same night, there was no sentence.

Sullivan has a long record, having served over 15 years in state prisons in the west, or nearly all the time since he was 19 years old.

He was sent in Jail at the name of Henry Marger, from Chicago, for burglary, on a sentence of five years. In 1902 he was in the jails again on a charge of burglary and was sentenced to six years in the Jail at prison. He escaped from the prison but was soon recaptured and was released after serving six years and three months. He served this sentence under the name of Thomas G. Downs.

He was out less than a month when he got into trouble in Milwaukee and was sentenced on Feb. 3, 1900, to four years at the Wisconsin state prison for burglary at Milwaukee. He got time off for good behavior and was released on April 12, last. Five weeks later he was captured at Brookline.

Gall Stones Removed Without an Operation

After suffering for one year with gall stones, I was told by a friend to try Swamp-Root. I began with the fifty-cent size and after using four bottles found that I was much better. Then began using the larger size bottles and after taking three bottles I was cured. That was seven years ago this summer and I have never been sick since that time from this disease. I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root to any one for kidney and bladder troubles hoping it may do as much good for many people as it did for me.

Yours truly,
MISS EMMA HOLDEFFER,
20 North Thorpe St., Kansas City, Kan.

State of Missouri ss
County of Jackson

On the 11th day of August, 1909, personally appeared before me, a Notary Public in and for said County and State, Miss Emma Holderfer, who subscribed the within statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

HENRY C. EMERY,
Notary Public.

Letter to
Dr. Kilmer & Co.,

Prove What Swamp-Root Will Do For You.

Send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. It will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling all about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention The Lowell Sun. Regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

GOV. WILSON IS COMING

He Will Visit This State on Sept. 26

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—Gov. Wilson will be the guest of the Massachusetts democrats on the 26th and 27th of this month.

A special committee has been designated by Chairman Rice of the state committee to meet Gov. Wilson when he enters the state and to act as escort to him until he leaves.

The committee, under the chairmanship of National Committeeman John W. Coughlin of Fall River, will consist of the members at large of the state committee, who are as follows: James W. Egan, Pittsfield; James W. O'Brien, Northampton; David F. O'Connell, Worcester; Thomas L. Walsh, Clinton; John P. S. Mahoney, Lawrence; Frank C. Richardson, Essex; Walter H. Croamer, Lynn; Michael A. O'Leary, Cambridge; Joseph A. Maynard, Boston; Charles F. Hordan, Boston; John P. McDonald, Boston; Albin C. Drinkwater, Braintree; Dr. Timothy P. Sullivan, Fall River; Harvey H. Pratt, Scituate; Leon R. Egges, Brookline; Alexis Boyer, Southbridge.

They will meet Gov. Wilson in Springfield and escort him in automobiles to the place of rally, where he will make a noon address. Mayor Lathrop of Springfield will preside. After his speech in Springfield the governor will proceed to the Barre Agricultural Fair, where he will be the personal guest of Col. William A. Gaston, who will have charge of the governor and his escort until he leaves the fair.

Gov. Wilson will deliver a set speech at the fair. From the fair the governor and his escort will proceed to New Bedford, where he will address a rally at the rink. Mayor Ashley will preside at this rally.

After the New Bedford rally the governor will go by automobile to Boston, where he will remain over night.

On the 27th at noon Gov. Wilson will address a rally at Faneuil hall. Arrangements will be made for overflow meetings. At this rally Mayor John F. Fitzgerald will preside.

WOMEN AS CONDUCTORS

Tried Out on the Cars in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18.—The Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company is experimenting with women conductors on its new pay-as-you-enter cars. Yesterday two of the cashiers, or ticket sellers from the Market street elevated line were detailed to act as conductors on the new cars the company is installing in this city. While none of the officials of the corporation would say what the experiment showed, the superintendent of the Twelfth and Sixteenth streets division, where the women were tried, is reported to have been pleased at the showing made.

On the new cars the conductor is merely a cashier. He sits in a cage-like enclosure, receives fares, makes change and then records his receipts. Electric switches have relieved him of the necessity of aiding the motorman, and there is no adjusting of trolley poles, because of the new devices with which the cars are equipped. The company really does not need men to do this work if women are capable, and, with more experience, it is reasonable to believe their selection is only a question of time.

The Trip to California Under Special Care

"You feel like smiling out and tying together the memories of this trip and keeping them separate from all other trips." A woman recently said after a pleasant experience on a Burlington Route "Personally Conducted" excursion party to California. She traveled alone, but met many agreeable people on the car, which was in charge of a special conductor. This pleasant, natural, was a well-informed, courteous man who went all the way through with the party, looking after everyone's comfort and attending to all the little details of the trip. "Thus a woman or a child in one of these parties can travel with perfect safety and freedom from care. If you would like to know more about the Burlington's comfortable and inexpensive personally conducted excursions, write me a postal and I'll send you many booklets, pictures, etc., by return mail. Two Persons Killed

CAPE GIARDEAU, Mo., Sept. 18.—Two persons were killed and 14 injured last night when a train of cars carrying Lemont's dog and pony show crashed through a bridge over Hunter branch on the St. Louis & San Francisco railroad. One of the dead is said to be the owner of the show. As there is no telegraphic communication in that vicinity details could not be learned. Special relief trains have been sent from here.
